The International Live Stock Exposition

THE THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY SHOW

The Leading Exponent of a Great Movement for the Improvement of Live Stock and Crops

The curtain has rung down on a splendidly successful International. Hampered somewhat as to attendance by bitter cold weather its first two days, the exposition gained and even surpassed its full stride of former years, after the first of the week the gates recording capacious crowds every day to its close.

Evening Horse Show audiences crammed the amphitheatre to capacity, where they witnessed one of the best series of light horse competitions the International has ever staged. The hundreds of varied exhibits throughout the twenty acre area of the main and subsidiary buildings were equally impressive and seemed more than at any previous show to fix the attention of the casual passer-by.

Show Is Dramatized

The educational features of the International, in which direction the exposition has been rapidly progressing toward expansion and improvement for a number of years, were particularly enhanced by clever dramatization. Notable was the enthronement of the grand champion steer and the champions of each of the breeds of fat cattle. Similar spotlighting of breed and sweepstakes winners was carried out in the sheep and swine departments.

The same appeal to the attention was made in the championship carcass exhibits, displayed in giant glass ice boxes in that ever popular corner of the exposition, "The Meat Shoppe." Coming from nearby quarters, where the enthroned champion winners of the three kinds of meat making stock were on view, the visitor here saw what the same product looked like on the hooks, the carcass exhibits being those of animals entered in the slaughter contest of the exposition.

Thus in every sense was a more effective display of one of the original objects and constant aims of this exposition more than ever fully realized—namely to link in its exhibits the lesson to the live stock men of the type of meat animal that most profitably yields the choicest product on the block—with an equal endeavor to educate the public generally into a similar recognition, with particular appreciation of the appearance of prime meat cuts on the butcher's counter.

Appeals to Producer and Consumer

The International has been sustained throughout its thirty years of successful existence by no more fundamental purpose than this—to bring the producer of meat animals to a better conception of quality production, and the consumer to a clearer understanding of the necessity of fair prices to profitably justify this quality production, with the end view of a more universal marketing of the grades of animals that will yield good to prime cuts of edible meats. These two threads, which have never been brought into complete alignment, were more successfully interwoven at this year's exposition than at any former edition of the show.

Again was the youthful side spectacular and impressive. The International has been a pioneer in the work of encouraging young people to better efforts in farm and live stock work, and 4-H Club activities of America consequently find their annual fruition within the gates of the International, where a total of a thousand picked boys and girls from various states were sent to the Boys' and Girls' Club Congress, which, in effect, has become an exposition within an exposition. Ever since that momentous event in showyard history, when a twelve year old boy was awarded the steer grand championship at the 1928 International, veteran showmen have come to regard the youngster and his calf as their most serious individual competitor.

Time was when to win in the International Junior Feeding Contest, created specially for junior exhibitors, was the apex of the young people's showmanship. Now it is only a starter. They march their charges into the open competition with a confidential air about them, and records of last year's International and the one which follows in this book are full proof of their notable success.

All World Represented

The International is truly indicative of its name. Its scope is best conceived by a glance down the list of champion and first prize winners of the exposition. The record of winnings shows thirty states, four Canadian provinces and far-away New South Wales among the winners of blue and purple banners.

Its visiting thousands were as cosmopolitan this year as its exhibits. The cowboy from the range, the wealthy rancier of pedigreed live stock from the East, the business man from town, the business farmer from the Corn Belt, and the leading live stock authorities of foreign lands all met and mingled in the common enjoyment of fine farm animals and field crops. Animal life is the particular loadstone for all. On every turn the thirtieth anniversary of the International held for the visitor a view of the rarest products of field and feed lot in such unusual array as to kindle even the most lack luster eye.

PRESS WRITERS COVER THE SHOW FULLY

Besides the many correspondents of the papers from which the following excerpts are taken, there were several young men who covered the exposition for a number of press associations in such a thoroughly creditable way that they are deserving of special comment upon their skill in interpreting the many technical phases of this large agricultural exposition into language that is clear and interesting to their readers who were mostly city people.

During the week of the exposition they wrote hundreds of splendid stories on the high-light happenings each day. History was in the making with such speed that these writers were constantly rushed to adequately cover and keep apace the rapid-fire occurrence of events. The country at large, one might say, saw the International day by day through the eyes of these young men who throughout the week missed not one important detail. Their articles found print in the columns of the American and foreign press wherever the news services they wrote for extended.

The Associated Press had a wire hook-up to the Exposition Press Bureau over which it sent out a great number of stories throughout the week. These were most ably written by Gordon M. Sessions and P. H. Harris, members of the Chicago AP staff. Their daily accounts covered every important detail of the exposition from the first event of the morning until the windup of the evening Horse Show.

L. A. Fitzgerald has for a number of years reported the exposition for the Kent News Service and the United Press, giving particularly detailed reports to the Dominion press upon the progress of the Canadian entries in the International competition. Merton Akers' name appeared above numerous United Press stories that gave vivid, clear and entertaining descriptions of the show in each case.

T. R. Johnston, of the journalism staff of Purdue University, and Charles Stoneberg, of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work, were of valuable service to the press as interpreters of the Junior Department.

Walter Bermingham, of the Chicago Evening Post, the local press agent for the exposition, and his assistant M. J. Adams, supplied the city papers with daily stories on the show that found ready acceptance in the columns of the Chicago dailies.

The International News Service and the Western Newspaper Union were two further aids of the International which helped to extend the news of the 1929 edition to the people of the country, both urban and rural.

To each of these men and the organizations they represent, the management wishes to express its sincere appreciation and praise for the part that each contributed towards conveying to the public in such an adequate and interesting way the complicated and fast moving panorama of the International.

News Comments Are Complimentary

The world's greatest live stock university has held its graduation exercises for 1929. The management is to be congratulated upon its sincere endeavor to serve as an educational institution par excellence. Evidences of the constant improvement being made in meat animal production and the increasing enthusiasm among farmers for high grade stock were in evidence at the 30th annual International Live Stock Show at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, this week. In this great battle of breeds it is noticed there is a friendly rivalry existing between competitors in the same classes in all of the different breed departments. Each year brings out these friendly exhibitors and the facts that provisions have been made for an adequate place to house such an exposition, that there has been secured a man so well adapted to act as Secretary and Manager, and that the breeders throughout the United States and Canada show a willingness to meet their rival competitors, have made the International shows the greatest in the world.—The Chester White Journal.

Numerically the largest, geographically the broadest, and from the standpoint of high average quality the best yet describes this year's International. It is truly a grand review of live stock's most successful year in recent show yard history.—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

The most striking exhibit at the International Live Stock Exposition arrived a day after the show opened. Read our mention of "The Dakotas at the International." The pomp and pageantry of nature went on display Friday at the opening of the 30th annual International Live Stock Exposition and Grain and Hay Show at the Chicago Stock Yards. From Europe and Canada have come the purest breeds of domesticated animals, snorting and stomping as they entered the famed old tan bark arena, to match brawn and beauty with America's finest. In the Grain and Hay Show are exhibits from the richest soils and the best farm lands in the country.—Des Moines Tribune-Capital.

Twelve months have once more rolled around, and the International Live Stock Show is a matter of history. Each year the show acquires more angles, becomes more really educational, and enjoys a larger attendance; and the influence of thousands of live stock farmers gathering about the banquet tables, and around the pens and stalls, deepens, until no man can reckon in dollars and cents, or in figures of any sort, just what good these annual events bring about. —The Duroc Sentinel.

The immense classes of live stock and of grain are the first things that impress the visitor at the Chicago International, and next the great crowds that attend to watch the judging. Another International Live Stock Exposition has been held. To say that the 1929 Show surpasses all the great expositions of the past would be hitting a high mark indeed, still that is the opinion of some of the older experts who have attended this exposition from the beginning.—Farmers Home Journal.

Located as it is in one of the world's greatest central markets for live stock and all farm productions, the International is the natural mecca of farmers, live stock men, buyers, sellers, agricultural and extension agents; and in addition is a convenient location for meetings of associations, societies and conventions.

Probably the most outstanding feature of this great show was the quality found in every exhibit. Coming as a climax to the year's fair and show circuits, with prize-winners from all sections, the International acts as a final judge for the final honors.—Hereford Journal.

Bolstered by thousands of practical examples of perfection on all sides in the form of live stock and crop exhibits, these educational tableaus make the International more than a great show or spectacle. It is in effect an "Eight Day University."—Illinois Central Magazine.

We might go on, enumerating the outstanding accomplishments of breeders, feeders, grain and hay growers, boy and girl club members, until we had filled this entire issue and still not tell in its entirety the story of this great show. —The Illinois Farmer.

The International was host to the most capable gathering of boys and girls a world has to offer. It should be emphasized that the International Live Stock Show brings together the best live stock of the United States and Canada, and any animal that wins a prize in that show must be an outstandingly good one. Another International Live Stock Exposition, the thirtieth one, was held last week in Chicago and it upheld its reputation of being the premier show event of the breeds of live stock that furnish us our meat products. Through such exhibits and competitions do the breeds make advancements and keep up with the demands of our fast moving civilization. Thousands of live stock men from all over the country visited the show and many took part in it. None can view these animals that represent the best in their breeds without getting a better idea of what to produce and strive for back on his home farm.—The Ohio Farmer.

The International continues to improve.—Pennsylvania Farmer.

The International Live Stock Exposition increases in its international aspect. Showmen from everywhere will compete at Chicago from November 30 to Dec. 7. No one can go to the International, see the great display of stock, the show pavilion, and the Stock Yards covering hundreds of acres of land, without getting a broader vision of the live stock industry.—The Sheepman.

Among the big shows of the year none have a greater nor a more far reaching appeal to stockmen in all sections of America than does the International Live Stock Exposition. This is true because it is recognized by live stock men as the largest and strongest live stock display of the year. It draws within its scope the very cream of the breeds from all sections of this country where the breeding of farm animals is given attention, as well as outstanding representatives from the leading herds, studs and flocks of Canada.—The Shorthorn World.

It is good to attend the great live stock exposition to see the best of the meat breeds as well as the best finished of the market animals along with other very interesting exhibits. It helps to keep high ideals before us for the year that extends from show to show. This is needed too, for many of us have to see kinds other than the best often during the year.—Southern Agriculturist.

Again the Stock Show was unusual. The attendance records were broken. The weather was cold and clear and good for such a show. The exhibits were of high quality; the winnings exciting, and because Canada and England contributed to the displays, it was in the strictest sense an international show.—Wallace's Farmer.

Since 1900 the best meat producing animals in the land have been crowned at this final exposition. Also, the snappiest and best drafters have been picked to defend the place held by horses. Upon the outcome of these show ring battles, and the verdicts handed down by judges, rested the standards set for the breeding of meat type animals.—Wisconsin Agriculturist and Farmer.

Chicago Papers Praise the Show

Farmers and stock breeders from all parts of America and from many foreign countries are gathering in Chicago for the "World Series" of the live stock and agricultural industries, opening at the Stock Yards today. Chicagoans, too, should see this International Live Stock Exposition. The show is right at their door and this year the classic will surpass in greatness any of the previous shows.—Chicago Evening American.

The blue book of agriculture was in the making as the experts set about the task of picking the champions at the International Live Stock Exposition and Grain and Hay Show.—Chicago Herald and Examiner.

New records in entries are listed for the International Live Stock Exposition, which will be held at the Union Stock Yards from November 30 to December 7. With the completion of the tabulation, the list shows slightly in excess of 12,000 nominations in the cattle, horse, sheep and swine classes.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Any exposition that draws 100,000 visitors from a distance to a single city must be good. Chicago's annual live stock exposition, however, is far more than a good show. Indeed it does for agriculture and the industry of animal husbandry what Chicago's Art Institute and New York's Metropolitan Museum do for painting and sculpture, and what grand opera and high-class symphony orchestras do for music. It creates a desire in the farming communities for the improvement in the breeds of farm animals and in the quality of farm produce and inspires a determination to bring about that improvement.—Chicago Daily News.

As an annual event the International Live Stock Exposition maintains the pre-eminence of Chicago as the converging point of breeders. Its blue ribbon is the criterion of quality; its championships are undisputed.—Chicago Evening Post.

This exposition is a demonstration of what the great basic industry of America is doing. It is an education and an inspiration.—Chicago Tribune.

RADIO CARRIES SHOW TO MILLIONS

By C. A. STOOKEY, JR.

Frank E. Mullen
Director NBC

In addition to the thousands of visitors in person at the 1929 International, thousands, perhaps millions, of others received a vivid word picture of this great show by radio.

Through a 35-station network of the National Broadcasting Company a program of an hour was broadcast direct from a temporary studio located on the main floor of the mammoth amphitheatre.

At noon on the first Saturday of the exposition Frank E. Mullen, director of agriculture for the NBC, introduced Secretary B. H. (Barney) Heide, who officially opened the program and extended an invitation to all listeners to attend this premier agricultural classic of the world. Beginning Monday the program was in charge of "Charley" Stookey, farm program director of WLS, the Prairie Farmer station, who acted as announcer and interpreter of the show.

Winners Tell How They Did It

As rapidly as major awards were made in all classes, the winners were announced and the holders of the honors were brought before the microphone to deliver brief messages. Among those who told to the listening world the story of their success were Elliot Brown and Waldo Mommsen, the Iowa boys who carried off the highest honors of the exposition; Harold Deatline and Florence Smock, the healthiest farm youngsters in America; the "corn king," L. M. Vogler of Bartholomew county, Indiana; C. E. Troyer of Wabash county, Indiana, who showed the reserve grand champion sample of corn and Ed. Hall of Sangamon county, Illinois, dean of cattle feeders, who for the third consecutive year showed the grand champion carload of fat cattle.

Others who had won championships were brought to the "mike" whenever they were found available, and whenever a person prominent in agriculture was spotted they were forthwith hauled before the microphone for short greetings.

Edgar L. Bill
Director WLS

Among prominent visitors at the 1929 International who talked to listeners over the 35 stations were Pres. G. I. Christie of the Ontario Agricultural College; Dr. J. H. Shepperd of the North Dakota Agricultural College; Sleeter Bull of the University of Illinois; John Quist of Iowa State College; B. E. Pontius of Purdue University; Paul Taff of Iowa State College; Fred Holbert of Greeley, Iowa; Roy Caldwell, president of the Indiana Corn Growers' Association; Archie Wilson of Hysham, Montana, Jim Poole of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange; Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse Association of America, and many others.

Farm newspaper men from several states were invited to make short talks. Among them were John P. Wallace of Wallace's Farmer; Burridge D. Butler of Prairie Farmer; Dan Wallace of The Farmer; Ray Gilkerson of the Kansas Farmer; and Tom Leadley of the Nebraska Farmer.

Champion Steer Sale Broadcast

On Thursday morning when the grand champion steer of the show went over the auction block at $8.25 a pound to J. C. Penney, an NBC microphone picked up the proceedings of the auction as Col. Gross, a well known auctioneer, accepted bids.

During the week winning teams from colleges and 4-H delegations appeared at the crystal studio for a few words of greeting, a yell or a song.

Entertainment between talks was furnished by The Homesteaders, under the direction of Harry Kogen, Jolly Joe Warner, the Owens Brothers, the Pickard Family, and Frank Salerno, all of the National Broadcasting Co. WLS furnished entertainment in addition to the regular NBC staff artists. They included Bradley Kincaid, The Arkansas Woodchopper, Hiram and Henry, The Maple City Four, Tom Corwine, The Three Hired Men and the Ashley Sisters.

35 Stations on Hook-up

The National Broadcasting Company's program was over a 35-station network reaching from New England to Colorado and from Lake Superior to Southern Florida, and mail response from all sections of the country indicated that listeners in towns as well as farmers enjoyed the week's broadcast and were interested.

During the afternoon following the NBC program WLS, the Prairie Farmer station of Chicago, broadcast all its programs from the stock show studio until 5 p. m. No definite program was scheduled in advance, but it was made up almost spontaneously as things at the show presented themselves for broadcast.

CATTLE DEPARTMENT

Numbers Increase; All the Breeds Show Improvement

John T. Caine III
Supt.

Breeding cattle classes were the largest and best balanced in the history of the International. The Shorthorns led in numbers and showed a marked improvement in quality. This breed is making rapid strides towards the modern, improved type. The legs were a little shorter, the bodies more compact, the hips better laid in, the tail heads smoother, and they carried a deeper covering of high quality flesh.

Herefords have been steadily advancing for over a score of years. These cattle as seen at the 1929 International represented almost the acme of perfection in early maturity and general adaptation to feed lot and grazing conditions. This year's exposition attracted the best Herefords from most every section of the country; and it was, altogether, the best balanced show that this breed has made, being especially strong in the younger classes.

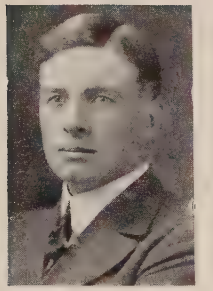
The International marked the climax of the best show year in the history of the Angus breed. The South American judge, Mr. Grant, had the opportunity of passing judgment upon the very tops of this breed—headline winners from the leading shows of the United States and Canada. He saw a female show that easily eclipsed the best ever witnessed in the native home of these cattle in Scotland, and in the bull classes he reviewed strong, evenly balanced line-ups from start to finish.

The individual fat steer show was more uniformly good, was greater in numbers, and had better balance than last year. All of the breeds were well represented. The large number and the high average quality of the steers shown by the Boys' and Girls' Clubs was one of the most interesting features, not only of the cattle show, but of the entire exposition.

Canada took to itself both of the Shorthorn championships, while Iowa monopolized the Angus and the Red Polled honors, and shared with Colorado the Hereford tops. The Buckeye state and the Northwest divided the Milking Shorthorn championships, the bull ribbon going to North Dakota and the female banner to Ohio, and the latter state also received one of the Polled Shorthorn purple awards, the other going to Minnesota.

The management of this department was under the direction of John T. Caine III, superintendent of cattle.

SHORTHORNS IN RICH QUALITY SHOW



John Miller, Jr.
Judge

The Shorthorn show at the International Exposition this year was the most brilliant from the standpoint of general quality and high average of the exhibits of any show that has been held in this country. There have been times when the exhibit was larger, but it was never better.

The judge, John Miller, Jr., of Ashburn, Ontario, said, that throughout the entire show, with almost no exception, the classes were the strongest that he had ever had an opportunity of judging, and it is well known that he has had considerable experience along this line.

Both Grand Championships to Canada

This year's show was truly international, and it happened that the greatest honors of the show were won by Canadian exhibitors, although the cattle with which they won some of the highest honors were bred and developed in this country. In the aged bull class there were nine animals shown. The top three were the same as at the American Royal, although they occupied slightly different relative positions. Maxwalton Referee took first place and Merl Whalin's Rodney Supreme was second. Dreadnaught Salute was rated by Judge Miller in third place. It was a fine display of aged bulls.

The two year old class is the one from which most of the champions have come during this season's showing. It was a strong show here and any one of the first three would have made a most satisfactory champion, and every one had his advocates for that honor. The judge selected Edellyn Favorite to head this class. He is a beautiful roan, massive but with stylish character. He possesses an impressive head and neck, is exceptionaly straight in his top and bottom lines, is well covered with good quality flesh and is very deep and full in his thighs. Second prize went to Sni-A-Bar Courtier, another good roan with all the earmarks of a stock bull, strong in head and neck, deep and full in his heart and on good, sturdy, well placed legs. The third prize bull in this class, Browndale Premier from Gov. Shallenberger's herd, weighs approximately a ton. He is very much the type of bull that all breeders are seeking to produce at present.

Sni-A-Bar Farms won first and second prizes in the senior yearling class, first on Beauty's Pride, a level, well balanced, attractive roan with splendid character, impressive head and neck and notable symmetry throughout. He is much the same stamp as his half-brother that won second place in the preceding class and that has been many times a grand champion throughout the year. They won second prize on the deep bodied, thick and smooth fleshed white Hercules Imperial. It was a good strong class but these two bulls were never in danger of losing their positions.

The junior yearling class was won by Kalarama Farms on Browndale Thistle, a blocky, thick fleshed, well balanced son of Browndale Count. Second prize went to Easton & Ward on Collynie Silver Crest, a rugged, thick fleshed son of Collynie Clipper Crest, possessing a grand head and the general appearance of a stock bull.

Jr. Champion From Summer Yearlings

Dale's Lodge Keeper, a level roan with lots of meat on top, possessing good depth, won first in the summer yearling class for T. A. Russell of Ontario. Second prize went to Collynie Marshal, a son of Collynie Field Marshal, bred and exhibited by Easton & Ward of California. Like all of the cattle from this noted herd he is exceedingly well fleshed and wears the head of a real stock bull. R. C. Boeger of Missouri took third place on a very smooth, typy roan son of Rodney's Cavalier.

The senior calves were 26 in number and presented a real problem for the judge. Browndale Captain, a burly thick fleshed, deep bodied, short legged red son of the noted Browndale Count, topped this great class of calves. The second and third prize calves were Canadian entries. The second prize was Merry Minstrel by Thornton Minstrel, shown by Col. Deacon, and the third was Browndale Style, a son of Browndale Courtier, shown by Mr. Russell. Fourth place went to the good blocky dark roan Paymaster by Ballylin Rodney, from the Frank C. Baker Farms.

Col. Deacon won another first prize when his junior calf, Glenburn Prince Lavender, a son of the grand champion bull, won his class. Second prize was won by the Baker Farms on a most pleasing roan calf named First of All by the good red bull Choice of All. This calf was a great favorite. Duncan Campbell of Moffat, Ontario, took third prize with a good, thick, level son of Thornham Minstrel, the bull that won first prize in the aged bull class a year ago.

In the group for three bulls owned by exhibitor, Col. Deacon was first with Sni-A-Bar Farms second and Easton & Ward third, fourteen groups being shown. The first prize for two bulls bred and owned by exhibitor was won by Sni-A-Bar Farms, with Easton & Ward second and T. A. Russell third. There were twelve groups.

Both senior and junior champion bulls were two entries from Ontario, Col. Deacon winning the senior and grand championship on Edellyn Favorite and Mr. Russell winning the junior championship on Dale's Lodge Keeper.

Female Classes Well Filled

The showing of females was quite as impressive as that of the bulls. Classes were well filled and a high and uniform quality was to be found throughout. John R. Thompson's thick roan Lady Augusta 19th won the aged cow class. Col. Deacon's well balanced, heavy coated red Villager's Goldie won the two year old class, and Baker Farms' very thick fleshed, smooth, well balanced roan Fairy Rosebud won the senior yearling class. The senior championship was awarded to Col. Deacon's two year old.

Baker Farms, always strong in the female classes throughout the year, won the junior yearling class with Lavender Rose, a daughter of King of the Fairies, and thus a half sister of their first prize senior yearling. Second place in the junior yearling class went to Sni-A-Bar Farms on their well known heifer Sni-A-Bar Jealousy 2nd by Prentice. Collynie Rosewood 7th, last year's grand champion at this show, took third place. There were 16 heifers shown in the class and it was one of the very strongest shows of the entire exhibition.

In the summer yearling class, three daughters of Browndale Count were on top. Edellyn Orange Blossom 2nd, and Edellyn Clipper 6th shown by Edellyn Farms, won first and second and Browndale Maid shown by Merle Whalin was third. It was a good class and there were 16 heifers shown.

The senior calves were 20 in number and once more a daughter of King of the Fairies topped her class for Baker Farms. Edellyn Myrtle 4th was second, and third place went to Missie Brae 2nd, a daughter of Collynie White Ensign, shown by Mr. Russell.

Edellyn Farms won first place in the junior heifer calf class, this time with Edellyn Eliza 11th, a daughter of Bridgebank Warbond. Hay Brown took second prize on Haylands Miss Ramsden 7th, a calf by his International grand champion, Loyal Browndale. Baker Farms, always close to the top in the female classes, won third on Forget Me Not by Ballylin Rodney.

The junior championship was won by Mr. Wilson's summer yearling winner, Edellyn Orange Blossom 2nd. Col. Deacon's Villager's Goldie was awarded the grand championship.

Sni-A-Bar Wins Get of Sire

In the get of sire class Sni-A-Bar Farms had a uniform group by their great sire Prentice, winning first place. Edellyn Farms took second on pleasing sons and daughters of Browndale Count. Third prize went to Baker Farms on a good lot by Ballylin Rodney.

Eight aged herds were shown, first prize going to Col. Deacon, Sni-A-Bar winning second place and Baker Farms third. The yearling herds, eight in number, were led by an exhibit from Edellyn Farms, second prize going to Sni-A-Bar Farms and third to Hay Brown. Fifteen pair of calves were shown, Baker Farms winning first with Edellyn second, Col. Deacon third, and Sni-A-Bar fourth.

The Thos. E. Wilson Special, which is a prize of $1,000 for the best two head, bull and female bred and owned by exhibitor, shown at the International Exposition, to be won three times (not necessarily in succeeding years), was won by the Baker Farms on First of All and Roan Missie. Mr. Wilson's own herd did not compete.

The Casares trophy for the champion bull calf of this show was won by Edellyn Farms with Browndale Captain. This trophy had to be won three times by the same exhibitor before becoming his property. Edellyn Farms, having won in 1926, 1927 and this year, will retain the trophy as their property.

The Shorthorn Society of Great Britain and Ireland offers a gold medal for the best Shorthorn bull. This, of course, was won by Edellyn Favorite, as he was the grand champion bull.—By Will Johnson, Shorthorn World.

MILKING SHORTHORN CLASSES WELL FILLED

W. A. Simpson Judge

W. Arthur Simpson of Lyndonville, Vermont, judged the Milking Shorthorn classes. The show was a good one from the standpoint of quality. There was much enthusiasm in Milking Shorthorn circles about the show ring, throughout the barns, and at the meetings and banquet of the Milking Shorthorn Society.

Olsen Brothers of Hannaford, N. D., took first prize in the aged bull class and the senior and grand championship on their well known bull Hillcreek Milkman. Five head were shown in the two year old class and it was won by Babraham's Chief shown by Kohley & Sons. Bruington Brothers took second place in both these classes.

Kohley & Sons won first again in the yearling class with Bladen Royal, a son of the noted Anderson Royal Bates, while Hudson & Sons were second on Supremacy's Tope by Supremacy Batchelder.

In the calf class it was proved that Hillcreek Milkman is a good sire as well as a noted show bull, as his son, Hillcreek De Laval M, took first prize. Hudson's Supremacy's Duke, another son of Supremacy's Batchelder, was second with Bloomingdale White King, from the Bingeman herd of Ontario, third. Kohley's Bladen Royal was the junior champion.

There was considerably more competition in the female classes. Hudson & Sons' mature cow, Princess, by General Lafayette, won first in her class and later the supreme honors at this show. Gift's Duchess 2nd, by Flintstone Gift, won second place for Flintstone Farm, and Belle Girl by Silver King was third for Olsen Bros.

In the three year old class Bruington Bros. made an excellent winning, taking first and second with Brookside Satin 11th and Brookside Floss 2nd, both of them daughters of Brookside Royal, the former having been a champion at several fairs this year.

Again in the two year old class Bruington Brothers had first place, with Olsen second. The Kohley herd won first in both of the yearling classes and in the calf class. Olsen Brothers took first prize on Hillcreek Salveig 2nd M, by Hillcreek Milkman, and later she was awarded the junior championship.

It was a good show and as usual Arthur Simpson did a satisfactory job of judging.—Shorthorn World.

HEREFORD CONTEST A BATTLE OF CHAMPIONS

W. L. Blizzard
Judge

The task of judging the Hereford breeding classes was very ably handled by Professor W. L. Blizzard, of the Oklahoma A. & M. College, Stillwater. He had a definite type in mind and placed them as he saw them.

In the aged bull class there were five entries. As the judge walked out to look them over the large crowd of spectators began what was to be a great guessing game. Domino Lad 210th, the 4-year-old entry of J. C. Robinson & Son of Wisconsin, came out on top in this class. He is a bull that the judge liked quite well enough to carry him through all classes and finally to the senior championship of the show. He is a long-bodied bull and very rugged, but not so smooth. Largents' 3-year-old showed well in this class. Coronet Incom, the deep-bodied bull from the Hillandale Farm, looked good but was given third place.

Two-Year-Old Bulls Outstanding

The two-year-old bull class was the most interesting class of the Hereford show. Two bulls, Largents' Publican Domino and Ken-Caryl's Actor Domino, fought it out. Actor Domino won the class, with Publican Domino second. They are both outstanding good bulls. Actor Domino is smooth, deep-bodied and has a wonderful front on him. He is wide and carries well all the way from front to rear. Publican Domino is a deep, wide bull with good quarters, legs and bone. It was anybody's guess as to the winner of this class, and both bulls were worthy of the first honor. It was the general opinion that the winner of this class would be the grand champion, but—well, read on.

Out of the East came the winner of the senior yearling class in Woodburn 65th, shown by C. O. Graves. This bull is a thick-bodied bull but not so large as some like. Second place went to Adolph Tone, shown by Robert H. Hazlett, a bull that has been a good winner wherever shown. Woodford Buck 15th, shown by the Saint Amour Co., has headed his class at many of the fairs this season and is a mighty good bull. Rott Bros., with Bloomfield's Anxiety, slipped into fourth place ahead of many good bulls.

Hazford Tone 34th, shown by Hazlett, was an easy winner in the junior yearling class. This well-finished, compact young bull has won consistently all around the show circuit this year and is a splendid individual. Saint Amour Co., with Buck Mischief, another of their good bulls, placed second in this class, being not quite so compact as Hazford Tone 34th, but a mighty good bull with his ruggedness and thickness. Largents' Superior Mischief 22nd made a strong bid for second-place honors, being built on the lines of the Hazlett bull, but was placed third. Ken-Caryl was fourth with Bold Domino, reversing the ratings made earlier in the season among the second, third and fourth placings.

Summer Yearlings Yield Champion

The class of thirteen summer yearlings was a most interesting one, as it was a bull in this class that was destined to be the grand champion of the show. Matador, from the Perry Park Ranch, Larkspur, Colo., was chosen by the judge to head this class. He is a bull of good quality and is built on good lines. He is deep-bodied and is well-finished, and he handles well. Matador made a good winner in this class and has been quite consistent in many of the 1929 shows as the first prize summer yearling. Hillandale's Prince Domino Heir stood second, and was a good, smooth bull. Third place went to VanNatta-Murdock on Vanity Mixer, a bull that has been a winner in his class at many of the eastern shows.

In the senior calf class there was an easy winner in Prince Promino, the bull recently acquired by the Saint Amour Co. This calf is going to make a wonderful bull. He has a wonderful front end, and looks good at any angle. His head is a model Hereford head; his legs are just right. He had no trouble in winning, and has a great future. Another good-headed calf placed first in the junior calf class. This was Kinsley Domino, shown by Ken-Caryl.

In the senior bull championship class, the good aged bull of J. C. Robinson & Son, Evansville, Wis., was given the honor. In winning this senior championship, Domino Lad 210th had some strong competition, especially from Actor Domino, that was thought by many to be the logical choice. But a lot of credit goes to the Robinsons on their champion, that is, without a doubt, a good bull.

The most closely-contested class was the junior championship class. Hazford Tone 34th had been made grand champion of at least one show during the season, Matador had been grand champion at one of the fairs, and Prince Promino had been the grand champion at one show. These three bulls, with the young Kinsley Domino, were lined up and looked over. After much studying, walking, handling the Perry Park Ranch bull, Matador, was made junior champion. He had a lot of competition and good competition, and winning the honor was a good reward. Then in the showing for grand championship honors, Matador was the choice over Domino Lad 210th, and a new and different champion was crowned for the final show of 1929.

Ten cows were entered in the aged cow class. C. A. Meyer & Sons, Bellevue, Iowa, won this class on Sister Blanchard. This cow is a good individual and shows lots of quality, and has a calf at foot about seven weeks old. Second place went to C. O. Graves on Emma Braemore, showing quality. Third and fourth places went to daughters of Hartland Mischief. Third went to Perry Park Ranch on Princess Hartland, and fourth to Hillandale on Laura Hartland.

The unanimous choice for first place in the two-year-old heifer class, including the judge's choice, was Bessie Ann Blanchard, shown by C. A. Meyer & Sons. This cow was destined to become the senior and grand champion female of the show, and she deserves the honor. Bessie Ann Blanchard is an ideal Hereford matron. She is built on a large scale with lots of quality. Second in this class was Hazlett's Ino, a heifer showing quality and femininity in a high degree.

Bloss 47th, from the Hazlett herd, headed a strong class of 15 senior yearling heifers and was closely followed by Freda Domino, the Ken-Caryl entry. These two are somewhat alike in size and character. Third place went to C. A. Smith on a heifer that was not quite as smooth as the first two, but one that looked good in third place.

There were fifteen good heifers in the junior yearling class and it was hard to pick the tops. Any of a half dozen was good enough to head the class, and finally the honor went to the Saint Amour Company on Doe Avalanch 60th, a heifer that has been winning well throughout the season. Miss Domino 4th, Largents' heifer, stood second, being not quite as smooth, but a good heifer just the same. Ken-Caryl placed third on Dorrette.

Ken-Caryl scored in the summer yearling heifer class with Evelyn Domino, a heifer that has good lines, a good head and with good quality. Following her was C. O. Graves' May Braemore in second place and Hazlett's Ionel 2nd. There were seventeen in this class and it made one of the strongest heifer classes.

The senior calf class was won by Hazlett on Lady Ileen 47th, one that had everything that could be desired in a young heifer. Ken-Caryl's junior calf, Leona Domino, headed the younger class and was another desirable heifer. The junior championship of the show lay between these two outstanding calves with the honor finally going to Leona Domino, though either could have had the honor. Judge Blizzard debated long before making the decision.

1928 Champion Repeats

A record was established in the senior and grand championship female winnings. Bessie Ann Blanchard, shown by the Meyers, easily won all the way through to the highest honors. This wonderful female won the grand championship honors at the International in 1928 and repeated the feat this year. Bessie Ann Blanchard has a long list of winnings to her credit, and she is retiring this year to take up her duties in the Meyer breeding herd. The junior female championship of the show went to Ken-Caryl on Leona Domino, a January calf.

Robert H. Hazlett and the Ken-Caryl Ranch won the firsts in the group classes with Hazlett winning five firsts and two seconds and Ken-Caryl winning two firsts and four seconds. These group classes brought out lots of quality and uniformity and made one of the best displays ever seen at the International.

The judging was completed in almost record time, beginning at 2 o'clock one afternoon and finishing the next day at the same time.—Hayes Walker, Jr., in The American Hereford Journal.

ANGUS SHOW EVOKES FOREIGN JUDGE'S PRAISE

Wm. J. Grant
Judge

"The grievous thing about it all is that those animals at the foot of the class are really worthy of top honors in a very good, I say a very good strong show, under ordinary conditions and circumstances," remarked Judge William J. Grant, of Buenos Aires, Argentina, as the parade of the "Black Diamonds" circled about him for his judicial review. "This display is quite out of the ordinary," he was heard to further declare.

As had been expected by those who had followed the shows from early in the season, the aged bull class would present in its winner the strongest candidate for the grand champion bull honors. So it proved. But which bull should be first in the aged class proved another quandary. Eight out of the nine that came before Judge Grant had each won from a few to many grand championship ribbons at big shows this year.

When the aged bull class had settled into position along the rail it was found that the great smooth, massive, thickly covered bull Eileenmere 15th had completely filled the eye of the judge. His attractive finish and quality appealed to the ringside. He did not, however, win this laurel without opposition, for Prizemere 50th claimed his right to the top position and with considerable emphasis at that. Even in the next position Excelsior Marshall 3rd, also as smooth as an apple, held great hopes of finishing at the top. Either of the three would have made a satisfactory winner.

Past Champions Among Two-year-olds

There were eleven two-year-olds out. What a class! Here was to be another hair splitting decision for, like the aged class, there were champions all down the line. Eventuation of Page, Ames Plantation Pal, Briarcliff Eland 2nd and Black Marshall 21st, the second bull twice reserve champion at this show, each held fond hopes. When the lines had finally been formed these bulls stood as enumerated. Eventuation had that unexplainable something about him that made it impossible for the exceptionally smooth Ames Plantation Pal to force him out of top place. A very similar competition took place between the next pair. In fact, the top trio might have been shifted and no one would have found serious fault, so close was this competition.

The nine bulls in the senior yearling class put up the same kind of battle. Blackbird Bandolier of Page went to the top and Prizemere 115th stood second, with Revolution Marshall 21st at third, and so on down the line. Thus finished the three senior classes. So far the show had been above par.

As the twelve junior yearlings marched in and found places in the first lineup the judge knitted his brow, glanced along the line, and remarked as the ring clerk informed him that the class was ready, something like this—"my good man, is this thing to continue to the end of the bull show?" When informed that the prospects were good for that kind of a show to the end, he said, "it doesn't seem possible." Falling immediately to work he found soon a youngster called Revolution 45th which he passed to the top of the class. This was a real outstanding youngster, destined to become the junior champion of this great show and later to come near to taking the final honors away from the aged bull in the grand championship contest.

Quality Marks Young Classes

The summer yearling class of ten was good from top to bottom, scarcely a youngster in the line that had not won a blue ribbon this season. Some had won purples. The class was headed by Prizemere 138th with Revolution 84th standing next. Thirteen senior bull calves and fifteen junior bull calves, each class containing outstanding prospects assured those along the rail that future Aberdeen-Angus shows would be well represented. The type and the quality of these two classes was above the average by quite some margin.

Three and two bull groups made a showing that packed the seats along the Doddie lines; in fact, the section of seats above the Aberdeen-Angus cattle were filled to capacity from early morning until the last class was led out each day. The bulls were impressive because of their massiveness, smoothness, and superb quality.

Never will we forget the expression on the face of Judge Grant when the aged cow class sauntered across the tanbark to its position at the far end of the arena—ten of them, all wonderful individuals the like of which never before graced an International show ring, a splendid greeting and an inspiration to the judge who already knew that our females were outstanding, "but this is beyond my expectations," he remarked as he set to work.

Iowa Firm Shows Champion Female

The Iowa firm of Harrison & Ryan had captured both the bull championships and here they returned with the aged cow, Blackcap of Glenrock 3rd—majestic, magnificent in type and conformation, presented in perfect form. It was she that became senior and grand champion of this show. This class of ten made a wonderful showing, great massive cows, smooth and even from end to end and all of practically the same type and conformation.

The two-year-old class of twelve was just as attractive. The senior yearling class of fourteen was headed by Maple River Erianna 5th. There were as many as nineteen out in some of the female classes—in some of them young things that had previously won purple ribbons at good strong shows, and that here had to take places far down the line. Mrs. Irene Brown, also of Iowa, carried away the junior female championship ribbon with the very excellent heifer, Blackbird of S. 3rd.

There were eleven sets of two females out and when they were in line ready to receive the ribbons, they made a decidedly impressive sight and caused plenty of talk about the ringside. Nine groups lined up in the get of sire contest where the International grand champion bull, Blackcap Revolution, won first place. Seven sets in the aged herd group were headed by sons and daughters of Blackcap Revolution. His get also won the yearling herd contest where eight groups were shown, and his progeny won the pair of calves class.—The Aberdeen-Angus Journal.

RED POLLS MERIT JUDGE'S PRAISE

H. H. Kildee
Judge

Of the Red Polled show, Judge H. H. Kildee had this to say: "The winning aged bull, made the grand champion, approximates closely the most acceptable type. The winners in the younger class were pleasing and closely resembled the grand champion. There was a close contest between the yearlings and calves for junior honors, but the senior yearling won.

The pairs of cows shown in milk made a splendid show and attracted much favorable comment. The wining pair was made up of second prize aged cow and the first prize two-year-old heifer. The two-year-old was of superior type and breed character, with excellent lines and body conformation, and an udder of unusual balance and symmetry. She later won the senior championship from the good cow shown by Sloan and the grand championship from the excellent junior yearling heifer shown by Graff. Many splendid heifers were in the yearling and calf classes.

Of considerable interest were the newly imported and therefore rather thin heifers shown by Harwood of Masschusetts.

Group showing furnished ample proof that breeders of Red Polls are making real progress toward animals of superior and more uniform type. Seldom have I seen in any breed display so many groups of outstanding merit and uniformity."—Breeder's Gazette.

POLLED SHORTHORN EXHIBIT BEST ON RECORD

Nowhere throughout the huge International pavilion did a better spirit prevail than in the Polled Shorthorn barn in which was stalled the best lot of cattle of this breed ever on exhibit at an International.

Improved quality and improved type were easily noticeable and a far greater interest on the part of visitors was displayed. In their annual meeting a spirit of real optimism prevailed. The cattle they put up at auction were, with but few exceptions, real top cattle, and buyers were ready to take them at good price levels. And their contest in the show ring was watched by a large and interested crowd.

Exhibits from fourteen leading Polled Shorthorn herds competed for honors in the show ring. Most of these groups had met before, at shows earlier in the season, but this event was not a cut and dried repetition of what had gone before. It was noticeable that many exhibits that were out at earlier shows were greatly improved by the time they made their apearance at the International, and some of the state fair awards were upset by the decisions of Judge W. L. Blizzard.

Never before have we seen a finer lot of Polled bulls led out for a championship contest. Oakwood Radium, a strong contender for high honors since his calfhood days, and junior champion at the International in 1926, won the aged bull class for Teegardin. Rosewood Renown, also a former International junior champion and out this year looking better than ever as a two year old, stood at the top of his class for Clamme & Sons. Teegardin's Oakwood Rodney, a champion wherever shown this season and one of the best bulls that has ever been led into a Polled Shorthorn show ring, won the senior yearling class. These three competed for senior championship and a grand display they made. Oakwood Rodney was the most perfect in type and conformation and won the honor.

Four splendid young bulls from the herds of Hanson, Clamme, Teegardin, and Rose faced the judge for junior championship, the honor going to Shady Brook Monarch, the Hanson junior yearling. When this flashy roan stood beside Teegardin's Oakwood Rodney awaiting the judge's decision for grand championship, many old time breeders ventured the opinion that they were the best two bulls that ever contested for supreme honors in the Polled Shorthorn division of the International. They are very much alike in type. Both have splendid polled heads. Both are built compactly and are close to the ground. Both have plenty of bone and substance. Both are sons of former International Grand Champions. Judge Blizzard decided in favor of the more mature Oakwood Rodney and it may be said that he was a popular grand champion.

Five out of eight first prizes in the female division were won by representatives of the Elm Grove herd, a record perhaps never before equalled by one herd at this show. Judge Blizzard found his ideal type in a Polled Shorthorn female in Hanson's junior yearling heifer Roan Beauty 2nd, also sired by the International Grand Champion, Lord Collynie, and a half sister to the junior champion bull of the show. She was made junior and grand champion. Blossom Time, the Elm Grove heifer that won junior championship last year, and this year shown as a two year old, won senior championship this year.

First prizes in both bull groups were won by Teegardin. Bert Hanson and Elm Grove Farm divided the blue ribbon honors in the other group classes, the former winning firsts in the get of sire and yearling herd classes, and the latter winning first aged herd and pair of calves.

Polled Shorthorn breeders are to be congratulated. Their stock have shown wonderful improvement, and this cannot fail to result in increased interest.—By Hal Longley, Shorthorn World.

FAT CATTLE SHOW SETS NEW PACE

Walter Biggar
Judge

This year's fat steer show set a new pace. It was larger than ever before, the average quality much higher and the competition in every class was so close that the judge had to be constantly making hair-splitting decisions.

Lots of good steers that had won at the state fairs and district shows never got into the short leet. In many instances 50 or more steers were seen in one class.

Biggar Praises Show

Judge Walter Biggar, eminent and highly competent Scottish fat stock judge, at the conclusion of his most arduous task, said: "This is by all odds the largest and best show of fat bullocks I have ever seen. The tops are wonderful and the grand champion is the best steer I have ever judged in any land."

This was Judge Biggar's fifth appearance here. No other man has ever been so much sought after and honored in the way of continual service. The people over here like Biggar. They respect his judgment.

Two Youths Lead

In this greatest of International fat steer shows two Iowa 4-H club trained boys led the way. Elliott Brown, 20-year-old farm boy with six years of club training behind him, showed his 13-months old black calf, Lucky Strike, to grand championship honors. Right on Elliott's heels was Waldo Mommsen, 18 years old, still a club member, with his wonderful black yearling, "Mike," the champion yearling and reserve grand champion Angus steer of the open show and champion of the Junior feeding contest.

What a sight it was to see these two Iowa farmer boys prepare their steers and show them, gentlemanly always, but determined to win over the best from all parts of this country and Canada, shown by long experienced breeders and feeders, gentlemen of wealth who make the cattle business a hobby, as well as the state agricultural colleges that employ expert feeders and showmen.

At the conclusion of the steer show, when the last class had passed before him, Judge Biggar reiterated his high regard of the 1929 International fat cattle that he had reviewed. "It is the best steer show I have ever seen in any land. The classes are the largest and the average quality the highest. The tops in all the classes were very good. The grand champion is the best steer I have ever judged. His uniformity of width from end to end, his correct balance, and his smoothness of shoulder won for him over the wonderful yearling that was made reserve. They are a pair of most excellent bullocks, well fitted and cleverly shown. The boys have my sincere congratulations."—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

SHORTHORN TOP FROM JUNIOR RANKS

The Shorthorns put up probably the best show of steers in single classes that has been seen at an International Stock Show.

The classes were large and the quality was excellent. Judge Walter Biggar of Dalbeattie, Scotland, had a big job in every class. His work has been performed so well during the years that he has come over here to adjudicate our steer classes, that it is taken as a matter of course and there was not heard a single complaint or question about the soundness of his placings.

Girl's Entry Is Champion

In the first class there were 19 exhibits. They included the beautifully finished, thick fleshed roan Fashion's Favorite, shown by Ruth Henry, a calf club girl from Charleston, Ill. This steer was first in his class and became the champion Shorthorn steer of the show.

In the summer class, 25 were presented, as nice a lot as ever came before a judge. A very pleasing white steer by King Dreadnaught 2nd, a son of the famous Cudham Dreadnaught, shown by the University of Illinois, won first place.

In the senior calf class twenty head were presented. Dundee Jake 2nd exhibited by E. D. Logsdon of Indianapolis was a strong favorite for first place and was selected almost immediately by the judge and placed on top. This steer and Fashion's Favorite were long considered for the championship. The Logsdon steer had little to be bettered in conformation and type. He showed perhaps a heavier brisket than the older beast, but in every other respect was without waste and was beautifully balanced. Fashion's Favorite was a bit firmer in flesh, though perhaps a coarser steer than the Logsdon entry. The older steer was made champion Shorthorn, and Dundee Jake 2nd was reserve.

Boy Shows Calf Winner

The junior calf class was won by J. Owen McCord of Palos Park, Ill., a nine year old boy, on Bridgebank Laddie by the imported bull Bridgebank Gilbert.

University of Illinois had first prize on group of three steers, with Sni-A-Bar Farms, Grain Valley, Mo., second and Oaklahoma College third. There were eleven groups shown for these prizes.—The Shorthorn World.

HEREFORD STEERS CREDIT TO BREED

The exhibit of individual fat purebred Hereford steers at the 1929 International was one of the most creditable the breed has ever made at this show.

The top end of this year's steer show, composed, for the most part of breeder and college entries, was particularly meritorious from the standpoint of breed character, beef conformation and fitting. Walter Biggar of Dalbeattie, Scotland, who was judging the individual fat steers, frequently found it necessary to make detailed comparisons of animals in order to arrive at his decisions. When such close decisions became necessary, Mr. Biggar lined the candidates up side by side and went over them with a thoroughness that permitted few details of conformation, covering or quality of flesh to escape observation.

The Saint Amour Company of Pennsylvania headed the junior yearling and summer yearling classes with its two smooth, well-fitted flashy bullocks, Keystone Pendale and Keystone Avalanch 4th, steers that reflect much credit upon the herd in which they were bred and upon the man who supervised their fitting. Keystone Pendale, a consistent winner for two seasons, was made champion of the Hereford exhibit and champion yearling steer of the entire show. He and his stallmates, Keystone Avalanch 4th, first prize summer yearling, and Honor's Knave, second-prize senior steer calf, constituted the first-prize Hereford steer herd and the champion steer herd of the show.

Robert H. Hazlett, Eldorado, Kansas, headed the senior steer calf class with Inheritor. This steer was reserve Hereford champion, and later was made under-year champion of the entire show. When it came to selecting the champion Hereford steer, Mr. Biggar gave Keystone Pendale the Saint Amour steer, and Inheritor, the Hazlett steer, very careful consideration, and at the ringside odds were about even as to where the championship would be placed. The reserve championship went to the Hazlett steer.

In the grade and cross-bred section of the show, Melvin Simonsen, Hudson, Iowa, headed the summer yearlings with his second-prize club calf, the Oklahoma A. & M. College was third on Bright Panama 14th, and Keith E. Davis, Millersville, Illinois, was fifth. In the junior steer calf class, Marcel Zink, a club boy of Verona, Wisconsin, was first on a crossbred Hereford that previously had been made reserve champion of the junior department.—American Hereford Journal.

ANGUS IN KEEN CONTEST

"The Aberdeen-Angus single steer show was one of the largest and most hotly contested divisions of the steer competition." So declared the review of this contest that appeared in the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

It further states that the average quality of the Angus fat classes was the best ever seen at an International. In many of the classes there were real good steers down 10 or 15 places.

Following are excerpts from descriptions of the winners: "Oklahoma college topped the junior yearling class with Black Bar. He was closely pressed to win, as there were several steers near the top that looked just about as good. He was made reserve champion and had lots of friends for the championship honors. His flesh was of good quality.

A very strong class of summer yearlings was topped by Thornwood Dick from the Iowa college. This steer was champion Angus at his home state fair. He carried a wonderful covering of high qualitied flesh. He was perhaps a trifle high set, but had many friends for the breed champion honors.

Another Iowa college steer, Harvester, headed a very strong class of senior calves. Idolmera 8th, shown by Congdon & Battles, a very large junior calf, headed his class and was made the breed champion. This calf had a pleasing type, nice quality, and fairly good rib covering.

The breed paper of the black breed, the Aberdeen-Angus Journal, described the Angus steer show as "one of the prettiest affairs ever staged in this section of the show. The classes were large and many strictly first class beasts stood without the pay gates—there were just too many of that kind for all to gain recognition."

RED POLLED STEER TOP TO IOWA

Competition was practically non-existent in the Red Polled steer classes this year, there being but two entries. First went to Frank J. Clouss of Manson, Iowa, on Rex, and second to Roy Tapper & Sons of Monona, Iowa, on Susie, a free martin heifer. Both were junior yearlings.

GRADES AND CROSS-BREDS COME BACK

The grade and cross-bred classes came into their old time popularity this year. Their numbers were second largest in the fat cattle division and the quality was excellent.

The junior yearling class was a wonder. It contained many previous state fair and district show grand champions. At its head was the champion steer of the Junior Feeding Contest. This good black bullock was Waldo Mommsen's wonderful steer, Mike. He became reserve grade and cross-bred champion, the yearling champion over all breeds and the reserve grand champion of the show.

An entry of the Iowa State College topped the summer yearling class. He was a very nicely fleshed grade Angus. The senior calf class was full of quality. It was here that Lucky Strike, the grand champion of the show, was found.

A Badger 4-H Club boy, Marcel Zink, showed a beautifully turned, evenly fleshed Hereford that headed a very nice class of junior calves. This steer was also Hereford champion and the reserve champion of the Junior Feeding Contest.

YOUNGSTER FED CHAMPIONS SPOTLIGHTED

In the yearling championship competition the fight soon narrowed down to the Shorthorn breed champion, Fashion's Favorite, shown by Ruth Henry of Charleston; the Hereford breed champion, Keystone Pendale, shown by Saint Amour company, and the grade and crossbred reserve champion which was the grade Angus steer "Mike," shown by Waldo Mommsen.

The wonderful thickness and smoothness of flesh, combined with uniformity of width and lowsetness, notwithstanding a trifle of coarseness over the shoulder, caused Judge Biggar to send the Iowa club steer, Mike, to the head of the class.

Now the tension became really keen, because it was seen a calf must be the grand champion, as the yearling champion, Mike, had been defeated on Monday in the grade and crossbred championship fight.

Judge Biggar gave the Angus breed champion, the Congdon & Battles calf, a hurried inspection, the white Shorthorn calf reserve breed champion a good handling, then the Iowa college senior purebred Angus calf a thorough examination.

When he came to "Lucky Strike," the grade Angus senior calf shown by the former Iowa club boy, Elliott Brown, he stopped, he looked, he handled the flesh, he looked some more. He sent him to the top of the class.

The grand championship selection was now easy, as the calf had defeated the good yearling winner the day before in the grade and crossbred championship contest. He looked these two beautiful grade Angus steers over, sent the calf to the top and made the yearling reserve. Then the applause, and these two Iowa farm boys realized for the first time in their young lives the thrill of having fed, fitted and shown to the world's highest honors.

Biggar Calls It "Best Show"

Biggar said: "This is the best show I have ever seen in any land. The classes are the largest and the average quality the best. The tops in all the classes were very good. The grand champion is the best steer I have ever judged. He is right in type, correct in his lines, wonderful width from end to end, has a most wonderful covering of the right kind of flesh on all parts of the body. He could, perhaps, be a bit better in his lower thighs. His uniformity of width from end to end, his correct balance and his smoothness of shoulder won for him over the splendid yearling that was made reserve. If the latter animal were a bit smoother in his shoulders he could win in almost any show. They were a pair of wonderful bullocks, well fitted and cleverly shown."—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

SLAUGHTER CONTEST—STEERS ON FOOT

By M. D. HELSER

T. G. Paterson
Judge

When one thinks of the carcass contest one always thinks of Uncle John Gosling, a familiar figure at 50 former Chicago shows. This is the second year that he has not been able to attend. Uncle John was 85 on Dec. 8.

Thos. G. Paterson, Larkspur, Colo., had the very difficult task of selecting the beef carcass contest winners and did it in a very careful and painstaking manner. The "rub" in this task is that the judges' work is checked by later removing the hide. In the junior yearling class were sixteen bullocks. Plenty of fat could be found, but Mr. Paterson was unable to find the quality that he desired in but a few. Kamo K., a neat, trim Aberdeen-Angus shown by Harold Hassler, Manning, Iowa, won the class. He was especially smooth, carrying a mellow covering. While he was just a trifle upstanding, he was especially well developed over the crops and loin and very neat and trim over the plate and brisket. He was followed very closely by another Angus, College Pride, shown by the University of Wisconsin. This was an especially well balanced bullock but lacked just a little in quality. He was a little deeper bodied and a little more even in his width than the Hassler entry. Third place went to the Hereford steer Parole, exhibited by the Michigan State College. He was followed very closely by an Aberdeen-Angus, Crestview Aladdin 2nd, shown by Fay Ljungdahl, Manhattan, Kan.

Five Tops to Angus

In the summer yearling class 21 steers were out. All five of these prizes were won by blacks. Briarcliff Black Dan, exhibited by Briarcliff Farms, Inc., of New York, won first. This bullock was especially well balanced with lots of quality. His development over the high priced cuts was especially good. "He carries the most economical finish of anything in the entire class," said Judge Paterson, when he later selected him for the "on foot" championship. While he was especially well finished over the back and loin, he was not heavy in his flank or brisket. He was especially clean in his lower rib.

Iowa State College won second, fourth and fifth in this class on three thick, meaty bullocks with plenty of finish but not quite so much quality as the Briarcliff entry. The steers were Thornwood Dick, Lucky Strike and Dick, the latter two being grade Angus. The third prize in this class went to Biff of Hall Orchards, an Angus exhibited by Hall Orchards, Inc., Belding, Mich. The first prize junior yearling shown by Hassler was made reserve champion "on foot."

CATTLE CARCASS TEST WON BY AN ANGUS

By M. D. HELSER, Superintendent

M. D. Helser
Supt.

Mr. John T. Russell of Chicago, an expert beef carcass judge, did an excellent job of selecting the winners from the large classes. One side of every carcass was "ribbed down" and then the "short leet" of six carcasses was selected and cut into rib, rattle, loin and round before the final placings were made.

In the junior yearling class, Crestview Aladdin 2nd, an Angus shown by Fay Ljungdahl of Kansas, ranked first. He had excellent conformation and a beautiful eye. This carcass was especially well developed over the loin, rib and chuck. Crestview Major, another Angus shown by William Ljungdahl of Kansas, was a very close second. He was about the same in conformation and finish but not quite so good in quality. A Shorthorn, College Pride W. 2nd, shown by the University of Wisconsin, was third.

In the summer yearling class, Ray, a grade Angus exhibited by Orville Aves, Melbourne, Iowa, was first. This carcass showed excellent quality, color and conformation. He carried a neat brisket, with plenty of finish and his kidney was very light. Elmer Goecke of Marshalltown, Iowa, won second on Shorty, another Angus carcass. This carcass was very blocky and compact and carried about the right amount of finish. He was followed very closely by Abie of Hall Orchards, another Angus. A grade Hereford steer, Curly, shown by Eldred Harries, Crescent City, Ind., was fourth.

The championship was awarded to the first prize junior yearling, Crestview Aladdin 2nd, shown by Fay Ljungdahl. The reserve championship went to Orville Aves on the first prize summer yearling. Both champions were Angus and both fed and exhibited by 4-H Club members. The champion steer carcass brought 80 cents a pound in the International auction sale of the prize winning carcasses. The purchase was made by the Shoreland Hotel, Chicago, through the New City Packing & Provision Company.

J. T. Russell
Judge

New Feature Introduced

Through the co-operation of the department of animal husbandry of the United States Department of Agriculture, a new feature was introduced into the carcass contest this year. The steers were graded individually before they were killed, and photographs of the side, top and rear views were taken. Later carcass photographs were also taken.

The cattle and sheep were dressed by Swift and Company. If the interest shown around the large coolers while all of the carcasses were being judged is any indication, exhibitors and the public are becoming "meat minded."

The prize winning carcasses were exhibited in the large display cases on the Exposition grounds. Such comments as "How would you like to taste that steak" and "I never saw meat like that before" and "That is the best looking meat that I ever saw" were heard from the crowds that milled around the large display cases.

ANGUS ARE CARLOT CHAMPIONS

T. H. Ingwersen
Judge

Where shall you go to see this mightiest of stock shows—the sweep and the depth of it, the meat and the marrow of it, the utility and the significance of it—what it means to the folks who spend May to November growing a crop of corn and from November to May shoveling it into feed bunks and watching it alchemize into living beef and pork and mutton?

Well, see that bridge which spans the alley betwixt Henry Hortenstine's fat roan yearlings and Fawn Lake's whitefaced feeder calves? That is the place to begin to see the real International.

Feeders Sent 237 Carloads

You understand, of course, that what you see here comprises the tops of the loads fitted for the International. There are 48 loads of Angus, 37 loads of Herefords and eight loads of Shorthorns, after 145 loads had been given the gate by the sifting committee. It has to be a fairly good load before it can get into the competition here.

Doubtless the most sought-after prize in all animal husbandry is the purple ribbon for the grand champion carload of 15 grain-fed steers or heifers. This year Tim Ingwersen and Henry Du Plan gave it to Ed. P. Hall of Mechanicsburg, Ill., on the evenest of his seven loads of black yearlings. This is the tenth time he has won this grand prize and the third time in succession. Third time and out, maybe—for we understand that he has sold all his calves to Oakleigh Thorne to be fed out on Briarcliff Farms in New York. At least three steers in Hall's winning load were bred on the Pacific coast, by Mr. Harrison. The load sold at $35 per cwt. to Arbogast & Bastian, Allentown, Pennsylvania.

The Tolan boys are neighbors of Mr. Hall, their feedlots being in the same county down in Illinois—Sangamon—and they gave him a close race with their second-prize load of Angus yearlings. In the two-year-old Angus classes they had one, two, three.

The Hereford yearlings had a cracking good show, too—29 loads, with J. W. Frazier, Charleston, Illinois, first, and Richard Lacy, Kansas, Illinois, second. Among the eight carloads of Hereford two-year-olds Foster Bros., Earlham, Iowa, had both first and second.

H. B. Du Plan
Judge

Henry Hortenstine of Gays, Ill., won among the half-dozen loads of Shorthorn yearlings, followed by the Griswold Brothers, of Wisconsin, up Mineral Point way. There were only a couple loads of two-year-old Shorthorns, the blue ribbon falling to Grove Park Farm, New Berlin, Illinois.—Breeder's Gazette.

How Champions Were Fed

The champion Hall calves were started last fall on shelled corn, oats, alfalfa hay and linseed oil meal. They were getting a pound of linseed meal a day when turned out to pasture the middle of December. The Hall farm is ideal for cattle feeding, being rolling and wooded, and affording shelter that enables the cattle to run out all winter.

About Aug. 1 this year a selection was made of the tops to be fitted for show. Finishing feeds were shelled corn, clover hay, with two pounds of linseed oil meal and one pound of cottonseed meal, two pounds of Tarkio molasses feed and three pounds of ground barley a head daily. They had before them at all times Moorman cattle mineral.

The Tolan calves came from Angus herds in Kansas, Iowa and Illinois. They were turned on blue grass last October, receiving in addition shelled corn and oats. They were on full feed in December and were finished on oats, shelled corn, cottonseed meal, linseed oil meal and Schafer Cattle Fattener.

They report an excellent bunch of calves on hand headed for next year's International.—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

W. W. Bryant, of Cherokee county, Iowa, judged the feeders. They show in loads of twenty.

Save for one load of Black calves exhibited by Stanley R. Pierce, of Creston, Ill., all of the other feeder loads were Herefords of the western division.

The trim, uniform calves from Fawn Lake Ranch, Rushville, Neb., were the champion feeder load of the western section. They averaged 435 pounds and sold at $15.25 a hundred. The winning yearlings, shown by J. H. Dickens, Walden, Colo., weighed 764 pounds and brought $13.25 a hundred.

ACTIVE BIDDERS FOR CARLOT CATTLE

The average price for 93 car lots of show cattle sold at auction for $18.50 a hundred. Yearlings predominated in the offerings and as a rule sold well above the 2-year-old steers.

There were 71 loads of yearlings which averaged $18.65, compared with $19.89 for 78 cars last year. The 2-year-old steers averaged $18.01 for 22 loads compared with $19.32 for 30 loads last year.

Among the different breeds, Angus and Herefords were most numerous, there being 48 loads of Angus and 37 loads of Herefords. There were eight loads of Shorthorns on sale, the same as last year. The average price for all Angus was $19.23, with $19.35 being the average for Angus yearlings alone and $18.85 being the average for 2-year-old Angus steers.

All Herefords averaged $17.80, Hereford yearlings alone averaging $18.04 and Hereford 2-year-old steers averaging $16.93. Shorthorns averaged $17.40, including two loads of 2-year-old Shorthorns at $16.75 and $17.75.

Many buyers were present at the ring and most of them got a few of the prize animals. Railroads and hotels, as well as packers and numerous public and private markets and clubs, made purchases. Eight of the leading railroads bought 44 loads of the show cattle, or nearly half of the entire lot.

As many hotels as railroads were highest bidders on some of the car lots.—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

SHEEP DEPARTMENT

Large Classes Exemplify Trend Towards Better Types

T. M. (Tom) Ryan
Supt.

It was a real sheep show. Large classes filled with outstanding sheep of modern type were the feature of this division of the 1929 International. Such hewing to the line in type and fitting was never displayed before in the annals of American sheep shows. Inferior animals were conspicuous by their absence.

Exhibition pens were filled to capacity with specimens of most of the breeds of sheep used in the live stock husbandry of the United States and Canada. There was keen competition in every class, and the uniformity of the entries challenged the ability of the judges, yet little criticism was heard. In fact the sheep show from beginning to end went along in a friendly way, due to the fine co-operation given the management by owners, judges and shepherds.

Wide Territory Represented

Exhibitors came from widely scattered territories, some from the hills of New England, some from the Pacific Coast, some from the South, and some from our friendly neighbor on the north, Canada.

It was interesting that the champions in Hampshires were from Montana and New York; Rambouillets from Wyoming and Illinois; the Dorset champions were both from New England; the Shropshires both from Wisconsin. In Lincolns, Canada took both purples; in Cotswolds, Michigan and Indiana were the fortunate winners.

This year's show gave encouraging evidence that the sheep is more and more rising to a place of popularity in the live stock man's eye. With each new show the champions that go to the top of the breed contest here show clearly that mutton and lamb qualities are undergoing rapid improvement.

Ideals Are Realized

Heavy weights, overly matured and fat animals, coarseness and flabbiness, are undesirable qualities of the past now reduced to scarcely more than a memory. Symmetrical, blocky, finely fleshed animals of neat line and handy size were predominant throughout all the classes. At this year's show these approaches to the ideal in both type and fitting were commented upon by those who are close followers of these events.

The Wool Show, a comparatively new feature, has become very popular with both exhibitors and visitors and serves to suitably spotlight this important phase of the sheep industry.

John T. Caine III and Superintendent T. M. Ryan are to be credited with the management of this outstanding event.

SHROPSHIRES IN STRONG SHOW

Wm. F. Renk
Judge

The Shropshire show was great in setting, great in sheep and great in the lessons which it taught. William F. Renk, Sun Prairie, Wis., judged, and he declared it the best and largest exhibit of this breed seen at the International in many years. "Shropshire breeders are to be complimented on the fine showing made at this exposition," says Renk.

The McKerrows—Father George and Son Gavin—added new laurels to their name and fame as breeders of world-beating sheep by staging one of the most convincing lessons in modern-day breed development ever seen in an American showyard. They did not lead out in the aged ram class, but after that captured every single first—a phenomenal record, especially in this breed. All of their sheep except the champion ram, a yearling bred by Tom Buttar, were by McKerrow 5715, a three-year-old combining the blood of rams which have become famous on McKerrow Farms.

Seven aged rams were forward. Andrews won on the Ohio champion. He had a little more indication of the sire, a more masculine head and neck, heavier bone and was better set in behind than any rival.

The McKerrow champion was an easy winner even among 13 yearling rams, so broad, low-down and thick was he, with a typical Shrop headpiece and fleece. Broughton's second-prize ram stood a little higher on his legs, but had a strong top and an appealing fleece.

The McKerrow winner among the lambs had to beat 25 good ones. He had the style and type to do it. Pennsylvania's second-prize lamb was not quite as thick nor even in his flesh, but he had Shrop type and character. McKerrows were third. The University of Minnesota wheeled a lamb into fourth place.

Twenty-three yearling ewes were forward, and McKerrow capped the climax by taking both first and second. These ewes were the same type as the yearling ram—very wide, low down, thick, even fleeced and sweet headed. The third-prize sheep was from the University of Illinois. She had a nicer fleece and firmer flesh than the Pennsylvania College ewe in fourth.

Thirty-four ewe lambs made up the high spot of the Shropshire sheep show. There were 19 in the short leet. Again a paragon for short legs, wide back and tidy finish and character copped the blue. The red winner was nice in type but hardly up to scale alongside the McKerrow lamb. She was shown by H. Noel Gibson.

SHEPHERD'S PRIZE

A friend of the "International" who wishes to reward superior skill, fine judgment and faithful devotion to duty on the part of the shepherds in preparing exhibits, offered a prize of $50 to the shepherd fitting and exhibiting the best flock of three American bred Shropshires, any age, shown in the recognized Shropshire classes. General conditions and shearing alone to count in the awarding of this prize.

HAMPSHIRE TOPS TO EAST AND WEST

J. G. Hanmer
Judge

New York and Montana shared the two highest awards in the Hampshire breeding classes. J. C. Penney, of Pine Plains, New York, a newcomer in the International sheep show, had the ram championship on an imported yearling, while the Mount Haggin Land & Livestock Company of Anaconda, Montana, received the purple on their yearling ewe winner.

The pen of ewe lambs went to Mt. Haggin, Penney, Bonny Leas, the University of Illinois, and Snell, in the order named. Mt. Haggin won the get of sire group and Penney took second. The flock awards went to Mt. Haggin, Penney, Bonny Leas and Snell. Mt. Haggin, of which Tom Drummond is shepherd, won the Thousand Springs Cup, and the Hampshire Association Shepherds' prizes went to Percy Hampton, Frank Klemke and Tom Drummond.

J. G. Hanmer, sheep specialist of the Iowa State College, judged the Hampshire show.

OXFORDS A "BRIGHT SPOT"

D. Johnson
Judge

The Oxfords were one of the bright spots of the sheep show. While the number of animals entered and on display was not as large perhaps as in other years, the quality of the show and uniformity of high degree finish were very pleasing. Duncan Johnson, of Appin, Ontario, was judge, and he was unstinting in his praise of the classes of this breed that were assembled for his review.

In the ram classes Fleming and McKerrow played a game of nip and tuck, with Fleming winning the two older classes while McKerrow won the lamb class with a very growthy, typy fellow that will bear watching next year. Fleming received the champion ram on a yearling and McKerrow the reserve on a lamb.

In the ewe classes Quakenbush and Fleming had the fight for the coveted placings. After a hard show Fleming was placed at the top of the yearling class and with a still harder fight, Quakenbush was given the high money on a very fine lamb that was well worth anyone's close observation. Neither of these classes was a walkaway for the winner. Every animal shown was good, and the top picks were very close. In fact it was the best I have seen for years at the International.

After much deliberation and comparison the ewe lamb of Quackenbush was made champion with the Fleming ewe as reserve.

The groups were all placed with a relation to the winning animals in the individual classes.—American Sheep Breeder.

LINCOLN HONORS SHARED BY THREE

John Rawlings
Judge

Three well known breeders and exhibitors of Lincoln sheep made up the exhibitors' list. They were H. M. Lee, Highgate, Ontario; Robson and Goddard, Denfield, Ontario; and Harry T. Crandell of Cass City, Mich.

The well known former long wool breeder, John Rawlings of Wheaton, Illinois, made the placings, which were difficult on account of the great variation in the types shown. Mr. Rawlings picked the larger type, somewhat more upstanding than others shown, paying particular attention to fleeces.

Robson & Goddard headed both the aged and yearling ram classes with large, strong, heavy-boned, good handling rams with splendid fleeces, placing over the lower set and compact types shown by Lee and Crandell. The aged ram easily took the purple, while the yearling was reserve over the good ram lamb from the same flock. In the yearling class a well balanced ewe shown by Robson & Goddard was finally placed over the good handling ewe of Lee's. The ewe lamb class brought out some top lambs, first place going to Robson & Goddard, Lee taking second and third. The yearling ewe was made champion. Robson & Goddard won both pens of three lambs, the flock, and get of sire groups.

In passing opinion upon the Lincoln classes at the conclusion of the judging, Mr. Rawlings commented, "This was the best show of Lincoln sheep I have ever seen at Chicago. The entries were marked by excellent type and fitting."

TYPE OF LINCOLN RAM

COTSWOLD CLASSES WELL FILLED

Judge W. E. Bryan, of Portland, Indiana, who judged the Cotswolds, complimented the exhibitors of this breed upon the excellent presentation of their nominations as to fitting and showmanship.

A correspondent of the American Sheep Breeder passed the following comment upon these classes: "It was a very good show of Cotswolds. Not as many exhibitors as sometimes, but better quality and the ones that were showing had a lot in each class; so the classes were well filled and there were a lot of good sheep that had to go without ribbons.

"In the aged rams, the first ram was a little upstanding but had a good head; the second was a deep set well wooled ram with good bone and head. The third was a little past his show ring winnings. In the yearlings the first ram was good in fleece and fine in head and bone. The second ram was very thick and low down with a wonderful head and bone and very firm in flesh.

"In ram lambs the first was nice in fleece and flesh but a little fine in head. In the yearling ewes the first ewe was very thick but a little over-done. In the ewe lambs the first was a nice fleshed ewe with a good fleece. This was the most even class of the show."

TYPE OF COTSWOLD RAM

SOUTHDOWNS MAKE SPLENDID SHOWING

E. L. Shaw
Judge

E. L. Shaw, of Ashley, Ohio, judged the Southdowns. Following are his comments:

"This breed made a grand showing. The classes were well filled, and it was one of the most uniform lot of Southdown ewes shown at the International. Most of the sheep shown were American bred. The class of six aged rams was headed by the Mountain Farm ram that stood first last year. This ram is of very pleasing type and conformation and handled very firmly. The ram in second position shown by Helms Brothers is a sheep of splendid type and conformation, but his fleshing did not suit the judge any too well. The McEwen ram in third position, and the Larkin ram in fourth position, lacked the condition and bloom to rank higher.

"A nice lot of rams lined up in the yearling class, but some of them lacked the condition and bloom to land near the top. Mountain Farm headed the class with a very attractive sheep in conformation and handling qualities. This ram had plenty of style and was well shown. The McEwen entry in second position lacked the bloom and handling qualities of the top ram. The first six rams were a very good lot.

"In ram lambs, Larkin Farm had a very attractive entry in top position. This lamb was of good size, thick and a very pleasant handler in all sections. The lamb shown by McEwen in second position was of the same type and conformation but did not carry the bloom of the winner. Any number of good lambs stood down the line. The class of ram lambs was quite a lot better than last year. Some real prospects were shown. The aged ram was made champion for Mountain Farm, and Larkin Farm's lamb reserve.

"The class of yearling ewes was a great show. Anyone of a half dozen could have headed this class with credit. After quite a workout, Mountain Farm landed first and third on two beautiful specimens. They looked like twins, but after careful inspection the judge decided that one of them was a little better than the other. It would be difficult to find a better ewe than the winner. Larkin Farm had a very choice ewe in second position. She was of beautiful type and a nice handler, but lacked the scale of the top ewe. Any one of the dozen top ewes would be a great credit to any flock.

"Mountain Farm's three yearling ewes made a beautiful show in the pen of three. Over 20 ewe lambs lined up for inspection. This was really the most attractive class of all. It did not take long to send the Larkin Farm entry to the top position. She is a wonderful lamb of a nice type and pleasing conformation, being nicely fitted and well shown. This lamb carried the most wonderful fleece that the judge has ever seen. She was undefeated at the 1929 shows. Mountain Farms had a real entry in second position, but this lamb was not as forward as the winner. A fine lot of lambs stood down the line. The judge worked to get a uniform lot in the top positions.

"The Larkin ewe lamb was made champion over the Mountain Farm yearling. In the get of sire show, Mountain Farm could not be denied the top position with their three grand yearling ewes and yearling ram. They also won the flock prize and so became the owners of the beautiful cup offered by the English Southdown Association."

CHEVIOT TURN-OUT PRAISED

H. L. Garrigus
Judge

Judge H. L. Garrigus, Storrs, Connecticut, gave Chase Brothers first on their aged ram, Minish second, Pullin third, Helms fourth and Clark fifth. In the yearling ram class Chase won first and third, Pullin second, Helms fourth and Minish fifth. Minish claimed first in the ram lamb class, Pullin second, Helms third, Minish fourth and Chase fifth. Chase's aged ram was made champion and their yearling reserve. The champion ram was sold during the show to Myron Loffer, DeGraff, Ohio. Minish, Pullin, Helms, and Clark were winners in the pen of three ram lambs class.

Minish claimed first and fourth in the yearling ewe class while second, third and fifth went to Helms. In the ewe lamb class in which 15 were shown Minish secured the blue ribbon giving him both ewe championships, the yearling being made champion.

Minish was a consistant winner with first in the pen of three ewe lambs, first in get of sire and first in flock. Helms took second in flock and Pullin third.

Upon the completion of his judging, Mr. Garrigus remarked that the Cheviot show was of particularly good quality throughout, and that all of the classes were especially well filled. "The champions were exceptional in type, and the ewes were very well fitted," he said. "The improvement in the Cheviot show since I last officiated as breed judge here is most pleasing," he concluded.

DORSETS IMPROVING

P. C. MacKenzie
Judge

Judge Peter MacKenzie, State College, Pennsylvania, gave Fillmore Farms first on aged ram and Chase second. Fillmore Farms also had first and third on yearling rams, Bald Hill Farm second, and Chase fourth and fifth. Bald Hill Farm topped the ram lamb class followed by three Filmore lambs. This lamb was made champion ram, leaving the reserve champion to Filmore Farms. In the pen of three ram lambs, Filmore Farms took first and Chase second.

In the yearling ewe show where 12 were entered, Bald Hill Farm had first and fourth, Fillmore Farms second and third and Kansas College fifth. Fillmore Farm had first and second in the ewe lamb class while third and fourth went to Bald Hill Farm and fifth to Michigan College. The ewe championships were divided again between Fillmore Farm and Bald Hill Farm, this time Fillmore Farm claiming the championship. Fillmore Farm also won first prize pen of three ewe lambs and get of sire but Bald Hill Farm doubled back and took first rank in flock awards.

In review of the Dorset classes, Judge MacKenzie says, "The 1929 International Dorset show is just about on a par with last year. In the ram classes, the ram lamb class was the strongest. Of the ewe classes, the ewe lambs were best. When I say 'par,' I mean numbers mostly, for in regard to type and quality, the Dorset breed is rapidly improving."

RAMBOUILLETS UP TO STANDARD

Fred Orth
Judge

King Brothers, of Laramie, Wyoming, attached the lion's share of the Rambouillet money. Judge Fred Orth, McGuffey, Ohio, awarded them first, fourth, and fifth in the aged ram class, first, third and fourth in the yearling ram class and first and third in the ram lamb class, giving this firm both championships and a clean sweep of the premier ram honors.

In the Rambouillet ram show the champion ram weighed 322 pounds and carried an unusually heavy fleece for a ram with such scale. It is unusual for one breeder to win every first and then draw them all out for the championship as was done in this case.

With the exception of the flock, which went to King Brothers, the colleges competed for first prizes in the remainder of the Rambouillet show with Oklahoma taking first on the pen of three ram lambs, Purdue first on yearling ewe which was made the reserve champion, and the University of Illinois first on ewe lamb which was later made champion. Illinois also won first prize on the pen of three ewe lambs and get of sire.

Mr. Orth paid compliment to the Rambouillet classes that were brought before him. He said, "In judging the breeding Rambouillets, I found that the general level of the breed was equal to that of the 1928 exposition, and I found one animal that I consider particularly outstanding—the ewe lamb exhibited by the University of Illinois. It is far the most superior individual that I have ever discovered in the past ten years. The University of Illinois is to be congratulated upon their development of this superior animal."

KINGS SHOW CORRIEDALES

Again King Brothers, of Laramie, Wyoming, brought to the International a show flock of Corriedales. The excellent King Corriedale flock is each year serving to favorably advertise this recently introduced British breed to American shepherds. The ribbon of Best General Corriedale Exhibit was presented to this western firm. This breed has many friends in New Zealand, where the greatest development has taken place.

FAT SHEEP DIVISION

Progress Noted; All Breeds Creditably Represented

By P. V. EWING

All the judges agreed that the 1929 wether show was more than up to standard and that a forward step had been made in approaching the ideal market type. All classes were full, and the champions were models of lamb and mutton perfection. As with recent shows the lambs predominated, and the premier award went to Purdue University on a Southdown lamb.

The feature of the fat sheep show was the strength shown in all breeds. While in past years certain breeds made up the bulk of the show, this year's exhibits proved conclusively that all breeds have their merits and can produce the ideal market lamb.

The quality of flesh displayed was unusual and showed a keen appreciation of market demand. There were none of the soft, over-done wethers of former years, and in every class there were individuals amply able to head any ordinary class. There were champions in this show from earlier shows from both the United States and Canada, and such an array of good individuals has never before been witnessed here or elsewhere.

Competition was so keen that the high positions were hotly contested. Sportsmanship was not lacking, however, and the judging attracted more than usual interest. It was an educational feature of inestimable value to the industry and points the way toward still greater profits in the production of prime market lambs.

SHROPSHIRES "BEST IN YEARS"

Judge E. L. Shaw, Ashley, Ohio, says of the Shropshire wether show, "It was the best seen in years. The 19 yearlings made a very attractive class. The top wether shown by the University of Kentucky was a thick, meaty sheep and handled better than any other entry. This wether was the first prize lamb last year, and champion and reserve to the grand champion. Harold Barber did a good job in bringing him back as a yearling. Iroquois Farm had two meaty sheep in second and fourth positions. The Andrew entry in third place was the ideal type in conformation but he lacked the finish of the top pair."

It was the best show of lambs ever lined up in the Shropshire wether classes. Twenty-nine head made a very attractive show. The top pair shown by Iroquois Farm were well fleshed and handled good in all parts. The lamb was made champion over the yearling.

HAMPSHIRES PLEASE ADMIRERS

"The Hampshire wether show was one of the best that this breed has ever made at the International. The fourteen yearlings made a nice line-up. Iowa State College had a good pair in the two top positions. The winner was a real handler and quite thick for a Hampshire. I have never seen so many good ones as were in the final rating.

"The twenty-six lambs did credit to the breed. Bonny Leas Farm had two good lambs in first and fourth positions. The top lamb was especially well fleshed in all parts and handled nicely. Iowa College and the University of California had good lambs in the final rating. The University of California won the pen on three good handlers. OXFORDS STRONG IN QUALITY

The Oxford wethers were of exceptionally good quality. Six yearlings appeared. Michigan State College won first and fourth on a good pair. The top sheep handled very satisfactorily. Iowa State College won second, third and fifth on three good handlers. The Iowa institution is always strong in the yearling Oxford wether classes.

The thirteen wether lambs made a nice showing for the breed. Quakenbush had a good pair in first and third positions and the Michigan State College had some good lambs in the final rating. Quakenbush won the pen on three good lambs. The yearling was made champion over the lamb.

Judge Duncan Johnson, of Appin, Ontario, made the following comment upon his top selections: "The first prize lamb was a real lamb, but the yearling was a little better covered over the shoulder. They were both very evenly covered, however, with good, firm flesh."

LINCOLN VICTORY TO CANADA

Canada again claimed top honor in the Lincoln wether show, and, as also in 1928, the purple ribbon was placed upon a yearling. It was shown by Robson & Goddard, of Denfield, Ontario, Canada. Harry T. Crandell, of Cass City, Michigan, was given the reserve ribbon on his winning lamb. According to Judge John Rawlings, of Wheaton, Illinois, the yearling wethers were a very good class, showing quality in conformation and skill in fitting. The lambs he found were a creditable line-up, but after the top three, were, in his estimation, wanting in the fitting and finishing of the older class.

COTSWOLD WINNER BOY RAISED

The rapidly growing youthful influence at the International made itself apparent in the Cotswold wether show, where the champion wether, a lamb, exhibited by O. R. Quakenbush, of Sharpsville, Indiana, was bred by a 4-H Club boy from Indiana. The three exhibitors of this breed, Harry T. Crandell, Cass City, Michigan; Charles J. Shore, Glanworth, Ontario, Canada, and O. R. Quakenbush, of Indiana, were complimented upon their entries by W. E. Pryan, of Portland, Indiana, who judged the fat Cotswolds. He was particularly impressed, he said, by the good type and conditioning of the contestants.

SOUTHDOWNS SUPPLY CHAMPION

"The Southdown show was the sensation of the wether exhibit. It was, no doubt, the best display of wethers that any breed has ever made at the International.

"The eleven yearlings made an attractive showing. The top sheep shown by Mountain Farm was a real handler. This wether was second as a lamb last year. Iowa had a good pair in second and third positions. Any one of the first five wethers would have been a credit to the breed at the head of this class.

"The 38 wether lambs were most excellent. After a good workout, the sensational lamb shown by Purdue University was in the top position. This lamb was ideal in conformation and was not overdone. The Chase entry in second was a wonderful handler. The Purdue lamb was made champion of the breed, and later grand champion of the wether show."—By E. L. Shaw, Ashley, Ohio, Judge.

CHEVIOT TOP AGAIN TO KENTUCKY

The Cheviots made a very good showing. Eight yearlings and thirteen lambs appeared. The University of Wisconsin topped the yearling class with a very good handling sheep, and the University of Kentucky brought out the lamb that most attracted the judge, H. L. Garrigus, of Storrs, Connecticut. When it came to a decision between the yearling and the lamb for the championship, Garrigus gave the purple ribbon to the Kentucky lamb, repeating the victory of the Kentucky school in the 1928 Cheviot wether competition.

Judge Garrigus was impressed by the high average quality of the fat Cheviot exhibit this year. Quality ran farther down the line than usual, he remarked. Correct balance and good quality were cited by him as the appealing characteristics that made the lamb champion.

DORSET LAMBS OUTSTANDING

The Dorset wether show opened with a class of five yearlings. Fillmore Farms rated first, third, and fifth, the Oklahoma College second, and Michigan State College fourth. The class of 16 lambs was referred to by Judge P. C. MacKenzie, of State College, Pennsylvania, as the best show of Dorset fat lambs ever seen at the International. Fillmore Farms' entry headed the class, and their lamb was later made champion over their yearling winner. The same establishment also showed the best pen.

RAMBOUILLET TOPS TO COLLEGES

Rambouillet wethers were judged by E. L. Shaw, Ashley, Ohio, whose report of the contest is as follows: "The Rambouillet wether show was about the same in numbers and quality as last year. Eight entries appeared in the yearling class, and a very satisfactory sheep was found for top place in an entry of the Michigan State College. This was an extra well fleshed wether, handling good in all parts. The next two in line were also quite commendable types and were creditably shown.

"The twelve lambs furnished a little variety in type and conformation. Iowa State College had a good handling lamb in top place, and the Illinois college flock had a creditable representative in second. The yearling was made champion over the lamb, the former being more typical of the breed and a bit more thickly and firmly fleshed throughout. The University of Illinois also won the pen class quite easily.

GRADES AND CROSS-BREDS EXCEL

"The medium wool grade and crossbred yearling class was excellent in quality," declared Judge E. L. Shaw. "The class of fourteen head made a very attractive line-up. The winning wether was shown by the Pennsylvania State College, and a better sheep has never headed this class. He was a model in conformation and nicely fitted. The mother of this wether, interestingly enough, was just an ordinary grade ewe, but the sire was a purebred Southdown ram. Chase Brothers had a very attractive wether in second position. Iowa State College also had a nice pair in third and fifth positions.

"The twenty-five lambs made a real show. There was quite a variety of size and conformation, and it was a little difficult to get a uniform lot in the top positions. The top lamb shown by the Kansas College was an excellent handler and a lamb that had made good gains. The yearling was given the championship over the lamb."

Judge Garrigus reported that the show of the long wools in the grades and cross-breds was about the same as former years. Some very good entries appeared in the two classes. Eight yearlings and eleven lambs were brought out. Robson & Goddard won all classes of singles and pens, giving them the championship, which went to their yearling winner.

GRAND CHAMPION WETHER TO PURDUE

While the champions of each of the breeds were eligible to contend for the sweepstakes ribbon, only three of the breed champions were brought out when the class was called. These were the Shropshire lamb, shown by Iroquois Farm, of Cooperstown, New York, the Pennsylvania State College grade yearling, and the Purdue Southdown lamb.

The purple ribbon was finally placed upon the little Southdown wether from Purdue. The reserve ribbon was awarded to the Pennsylvania College grade yearling.

Shepherd Saves Lamb's Life

Sam Breese, the Purdue shepherd, was heard to remark, as he opened the gate to return his grand champion charge to the specially built pen that had been constructed to house the winner of this honor for the week of the show, "It paid me to blow breath in a lamb once. The last time I blocked this fellow I said to myself, 'Chunk, if you go through this show, it was worth the hour I worked with you to keep you breathing when you were born.'"

"Chunk," as Breese called the grand champion, was born on a chilly March night, the first get of a yearling ewe whose dam and granddams have been bred in the Purdue flock since it was founded by the purchase of three ewes in 1913. His sire was a ram bred by our federal government.

"Chunk weighed 12 pounds at birth and was the fattest newly born lamb I ever saw," said Breese. "I had an awful time getting him to suck. For an hour after birth he was limp and more or less lifeless."

How He Was Fed

He ran with his mother until early July and then on rape until early September. He was fattened on a grain ration of oats, corn, bran and oil cake. For roughage he ate alfalfa hay and had some cabbage the last 30 days.

For four years straight Pennsylvania State College has won the champion grade and cross-bred wether on a yearling and twice out of the four years has been awarded the reserve grand championship on one of these wethers. Ring-side opinion conceded they had their best grade and cross-bred champion to date this year.

Judges E. L. Shaw and H. L. Garrigus who placed the grand champion remarked: "Both the champion and the reserve champion were models in conformation and were beautifully fitted."—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

SHEEP CARCASS CONTEST BEST TO DATE

By M. D. HELSER

Robert Lorimer
Judge

There were fourteen yearlings and fifty-nine lambs shown in the carcass sheep contest. All of the prizes except two were won by Southdowns. Mr. Robert Lorimer, an expert lamb and mutton judge, of Evanston, Illinois, made the awards in a very satisfactory manner. "This is the best lot of lambs and yearlings that I have ever seen," he remarked upon viewing these classes.

Mountain Farm, of Massachusetts, won first in the yearling class on a well finished, beautiful carcass of even proportion and especially full over the leg and loin. Iowa State College took second on another Southdown with a beautiful eye of mutton, but not quite so well developed in the leg. Kansas State Agricultural College was third with another Southdown, and Keith B. Clark, of Clark's Hill, Indiana, won fourth on a Shropshire and fifth on a Cheviot entry.

The lambs were particularly uniform and well finished without being wasty. Walter J. Templeton, of Evansville, Wisconsin, won first and second on two well fitted Southdown lambs. These lambs were later awarded the champion and reserve champion prizes. "This is a well nigh perfect lamb," declared Mr. Lorimer, in referring to the champion, and the reserve winner was just about as good.

"It is by far the best lamb and mutton carcass show that has ever been held at the International.."

When the champion lamb carcass came to the auction block, it was sold to the Shoreland Hotel, Chicago, for 75 cents a pound.

McEWEN LOAD CHAMPION AGAIN

Wm. F. Monia
Judge

Robert McEwen & Son, the Ontario feeders who rent out their ewes to farmers and take their share in lambs, had the champions again this year for the sixth time. They were Southdowns. They averaged 82 pounds and sold at $32.50. The 98th degree of longitude divides the carlots of sheep into natives and range sheep. The natives won the grand prize, and the reserve, too, on the North Dakota Agricultural College load, most of them out of ewes bred as lambs.

Howard A. Wood, of Wisconsin, won the range sheep class, and D. M. Ferry & Company, of Michigan, the range lamb class. W. G. Miles, Evansville, Wisconsin, scored a notable victory by winning on a carload of grade lambs from range ewes. The Miles are noted Shropshire breeders, and the use of Shrop bucks on western ewes gave them this load of $16 lambs.—Breeder's Gazette.

According to a report of the champion Canadian load appearing in the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal, the lambs comprising the winning load were brought together about the usual time, in September, and fattened on oats, Canadian field peas, and clover hay. The North Dakota Agricultural College, the exhibitor of the reserve champion load, made their first appearance in the carload lot competition this year. It was close between the McEwen and North Dakota College loads for the grand championship award. William F. Monia, of Armour & Company, placed the winners.

Further comment upon the successful experiment of breeding ewe lambs is made in the Drovers Journal:

"One-half of the North Dakota lambs were out of ewes that produced their first lamb before they were 15 months old. Is it a bad practice to breed ewe lambs is the question North Dakota has been attempting to answer? Look at this carload and one must say, "Which are lambs that were out of ewes bred as ewe lambs?' Talk to Professor Griswold and one soon gains the impression that perhaps we are all wrong when advising farmers not to breed ewe lambs. Maturity and care and feed have much to do with this situation, it would appear in relation to our present day sheep husbandry."

CARLOT SHEEP SELL WELL

The grand champion car lot of lambs, exhibited by Robert McEwen, of London, Ontario, Canada, went over the scales at $32.50 a cwt. to Armour & Company, which compares favorably with $27.00 in 1928. The highest price on record was established in 1926, when Chase Brothers' grand champions brought $68.00.

The average weight of the grand champions this year at 82 lbs. stands the lightest on record. A year ago the first prize winners averaged 93 lbs. and in 1921 some 100-lb. averages were put at the head of the car lot exhibit. Previous to 1912 the lightest grand champion load was 101 lbs., and the heaviest 181 lbs., the latter being 2-year-olds in 1901.

The 15 loads of lambs sold at an average price of $18.63. Six loads of native lambs sold within a range of $21.00@32.50, at an avergae of $24.86. The six loads of western range lambs brought $13.50@16.00, averaging $14.16, while the three loads of grade lambs, from range ewes, brought $13.50@16.00, averaging $15.00. Of the 18 loads of lambs and yearlings in the car lot exhibit, Swift purchased 11, Armour 4, Wilson 2 and the Pennsylvania Railroad 1.—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

WOOL SHOW CROWNS CORRIEDALES

By P. V. EWING, Supt.

P. V. Ewing
Supt.

The 1929 wool show was in many respects superior to that of the previous year. There were more entries than in 1928, and the entries this year included those of Canadian sheepmen. As was the case a year ago, King Brothers were the largest individual exhibitors, with twenty-six entries, while the Montana Wool Growers had the largest number for an organization. Several new exhibitors were on hand, and prominent in the show were the Merinos, which were classified this year for the first time.

George T. Willingmyre, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, judged the fleeces and was assisted in the classifications by Jim Coon, formerly grader for the Pacific Co-op, but now with the Department of Agriculture. In the fine combing market class, with thirteen entries, the winners were University of Illinois; W. H. Calland, of Summerfield, Ohio; Victor Pierce, of Ozona, Texas; King Bros. Company, Laramie, Wyoming, and John I. Liles, Collins, Ohio.

Montana Showing Good

The Montana exhibits monopolized the half blood combing class, with W. L. Barrett, of Augusta, winning first and third; Loring Taylor, of Chinook, second; J. H. Hahn, of Broadwater, fourth, and George Rumburg, of Chinook, fifth.

In the three-eighths class W. R. Krout, of Findlay, Ohio; Glenn C. Uhl, of Ames, Iowa; John L. McGeath, of Hartford City, Indiana; King Brothers, and F. S. Kindelsperger, of Montevideo, Minnesota, were the winners.

In the quarter blood class, the largest of the show, King was awarded the first four places, followed by C. Anderson, of Opheim, Montana; Iowa State College; Glenn C. Uhl; D. Johnson, of Melville, Montana, and John L. McGeath. King also won first and second in the low quarter blood class. The braid class was won by Thomas K. Lee of Big Timber, Montana, and A. C. Stewart, of Abbotsford, B. C. The championship in the market class went to King's Corriedale ram fleece that had won first in the quarter blood combing class, and the reserve to the University of Illinois Rambouillet ewe fleece that had won first in the fine combing class.

G. T. Willingmyre
Judge

In the breed classes King won all awards in Corriedale fleeces, Thomas K. Lee the Cotswold ram class, Kansas State College the Dorset ram and ewe awards, A. C. Stewart the Lincoln ewe, and Iowa State College the Oxford ewe. In the Rambouillet ram class King won both first and second, the Big Timber Rambouillet Company 3rd, and Victor Pierce 4th. In the Rambouillet ewe class the awards went to the University of Illinois, Iowa State College, Victor Pierce and King Brothers. In the Shropshire ram class Krout, Uhl, McGeath and Kindelsperger were the winners, while McGeath and Uhl won the ewe ribbons. In the Merino ram show Calland, Liles, Willman and King were the winners, King winning both fourth and fifth places with Australian Wanganella entries. In the Merino ewe show Calland and Willman were the winners.

Victory for Corriedales

While there were several outstanding fleeces in the show King's Corriedale ram fleece that was made first in the quarter blood class, first in the Corriedale ram class and champion of the market class as well as the breeding class, automatically making it the grand champion fleece of the show, was such a marvelous fleece in weight, of evident high yield and quality of staple that at Mr. Willingmyre's request it was presented to the Department of Agriculture by Mr. King for further study. By the fanciers of the breed this was considered a great triumph for the Corriedales.

But Jack Hampton's Rambouillet ewe entry, first in the fine combing class, first Rambouillet ewe fleece, reserve champion in both the Market and Breed show, and reserve grand champion fleece was the acme of perfection in quality of staple, character, and evident high yield. Among the other noticeable fleeces were the Liles, Krout, Calland, Pierce and McGeath entries. Liles' Merino ram fleece was one of the showiest fleeces on display. The Krout Shropshire ram fleece was evidently of very high yield with a strong staple of remarkable body. Calland's fleeces were winners at Portland and came through in excellent condition. The Pierce entries were distinctive with a light colored staple and but little free oil.

The second International Wool Show is now history. The entry of the Merino, the honors carried off by the Corriedale ram fleece, and the general high quality of the show are high lights which will give us a mark to shoot at in 1930. Plan now on saving your best fleeces, ship them into the office of the American Sheep Breeder at shearing time, and we will store them and enter them in the next show for you.

SHEEP DOG TRIALS INTRODUCED

The first International sheep dog trials were held here this year. They were a nightly feature on the Horse Show program. Entries made by Jack Story of Fillmore Farms and Preston Davenport of Mountain Farm were the chief contestants. Mr. Davenport's veteran, Spottie, won over Mr. Story's puppy, Sam.

The decision was made only after each entry had been given repeated opportunities to prove his ability, the contests being conducted daily throughout the week of the exposition. To make their test the more difficult the sheep supplied them are not trained but are purchased on the open market just before being brought to the ring, and a different flock is used for each trial. The shepherd must direct his flock from one end of the course. The dog drives the sheep over a prescribed run, through three sets of hurdles and into a pen.

George Phillip of California and Peter MacKenzie of Pennsylvania were the judges. Several have already signified their intention of making entries in this event for the 1930 contest. Owing to the limited time available for these trials, it will probably be necessary to limit the entries, declare those in charge.

SWINE DEPARTMENT

Interest Increases and Improvements Are Noted

Dr. J. M. Handley
Supt.

The swine show in both fat and breeding departments was a gratifying combination of quality and quantity. Entries were as large as at any previous show, and in many instances the quality exhibited outshown the best of the past.

Improvements introduced this year increased the educational value and general interest of this particular wing of the exposition, both to visitor and exhibitor. The segregation, by means of specially constructed and decorated pens, of the grand champion barrow and grand champion pen of barrows, flanked by pens containing the various breed champions, was a popular attraction for all whose attentions were directed to the swine show.

Changed Judging Routine Pleases

Favorable comments were received from all sides upon the changed routine for the judging of the grand champions this year. Instead of being held on Monday, long after dark and following an exhausting day for both judges and ringside, and when many of the latter group were unable to be there, this climax of the swine judging events was scheduled for Tuesday. Thus the peak of the show was presented at a time suitable for a large gallery

It added considerably to the interest of this year's competition that in the fat swine division a new order of breed victories for the grand championships resulted. The Berkshires once again came into the limelight by one of their number attaining the highest individual honor of the swine show, the barrow championship over all breeds. Hampshires came to the fore in a different division from the carload lots, which they have so long predominated, when a trio of the belted breed was given the grand championship over all breeds; and in the carloads, a novice in International competition, though a proven expert in the production of choice market hogs, broke the charm of an uninterrupted series of Hampshire winnings over a ten year period by annexing the grand championship on a load of Poland Chinas.

Winners Represent Popular Weights

The champion Poland China carload indicated the trend to lighter weight market swine, it being the lightest weight champion carload since the exposition began. The reserve grand champion barrow, a middle weight Poland China shown by the University of Wisconsin, also pointed the way to the changing styles in swine weights. The so-called old middle weight class, with a 250 to 350 pound range, will be the new high mark as to weight at future Internationals, this being the last year that the class for barrows 350 pounds and over will be in force.

BERKSHIRES HAVE GOOD SHOW

E. J. Barker
Judge

Seven exhibitors had entries in the Berkshire breeding classes. E. J. Barker, the veteran Berkshire improver from Thorntown, Ind., was the judge.

E. B. Moore, Sheridan, Ind., showed the first prize aged boar, Magic Valley Farm, Harlingen, Tex., giving him a run for his money with boars in second and third place.

Two were shown in the senior yearling boar class. Magic Valley took first. Three junior yearling boars were shown, with first and second going to John F. Stover, Crawfordsville, Ind., and Magic Valley took first in the senior boar pig class with Moore as runner-up.

Junior Pig Grand Champion

The junior boar pig class brought out eight exceptionally good entries and it took Judge Barker quite a while to make up his mind as to the relative merits of the pigs. Finally he pinned first and second on E. B. Moore's boar pigs, while third went to John Stover and fourth to Magic Valley.

It came as quite a surprise when Mr. Barker gave the junior champion, Moore's boar pig, the grand championship ribbon, also. He gave as his reason the fact that this junior champion showed a uniformity and fitting not quite equalled by the senior champion and that he felt this junior would develop into a splendid aged boar. Senior and reserve grand champion went to John F. Stover on his junior yearling.

Three sows were driven into the ring in the aged sow class, and first and third went to Magic Valley with two fine old sows. E. B. Moore took second.

The senior yearling class brought out two sows, first going to Stover and second to Magic Valley.

Female Classes Strong

Five junior yearling sows were shown and here again John Stover took first and second, with third and fourth to E. B. Moore.

The senior sow pigs showed nice fitting and Judge Barker debated some time over the five entries, finally awarding first and second to Moore and third and fourth to Magic Valley.

The junior sow pig class brought out the biggest number of entries in this show with ten parading in the ring. Ralph Breitwieser, Windfall, Ind., took first in this class with a likely gilt.

Senior and grand champion in the sow classes went to Stover. Ralph Breitwieser took the junior and reserve championship with his junior sow pig.

The Groups Please

Three aged herds were shown, with an exceedingly uniform group shown by John Stover taking first. In the aged herd bred by exhibitor class Stover also took first.

Three were shown in the young herd class, going to Moore, Stover and Magic Valley respectively. In the young herd bred by exhibitor Moore took first and Stover second.

POLAND CHINAS CREDITABLY REPRESENTED

Three herds of Poland Chinas came before Judge Glenn D. MacQueen, of Silver Creek, Nebraska. One was that of C. L. Hurless, of Coletta, Illinois, who exhibited a full herd of exceptionally fine representatives of the breed with which he had been winning the highest honors at the leading state shows prior to the International. Another was Wonderland Farms, of Wolcott, Indiana, and the third, William E. Brooks, of Wauconda, Illinois.

All three exhibitors took away a share of the money, with about an even division of the championship ribbons between Hurless and Wonderland Farms, senior and grand champion boar going to C. L. Hurless on The Valedictorian, and the junior and grand champion sow being awarded Wonderland Farms on Miss Security. Reserve champion boar was Wonderland Farm's senior boar pig, Show Boat, and reserve champion sow was C. L. Hurless' junior yearling sow, Miss Lindy.

The groups were as evenly apportioned between the Illinois and the Hoosier establishments. The two aged herd groups went to Hurless, the two young groups to Wonderland Farm, the produce-of-sow to Hurless, and the get-of-sire to Wonderland.

TYPE OF POLAND CHINA BOAR

DUROCS IN STRONG SHOW

W. J. Fitts
Judge

There were some mighty good Durocs on display this year at the Chicago International, and the show was especially strong in almost every sow class.

Some top boars were on display. The Marker, shown by Kehl, was first aged boar, and Chandler Raup's Count was first senior yearling. Charles Hildeboldt's first prize boar at the National, The Commander, headed his class here and was senior champion, but was defeated for championship by Chandler Raup's outstanding spring boar pig. Edellyn Farm's fall boar, High Wave, headed that class.

In the sows Chandler P. Raup won first aged sow, with Kehl first on senior and McKee first on junior yearling, the latter afterward being made grand champion. This sow is a daughter of Great Col.'s Queen, world's grand champion sow. Kehl's fall gilt, Rosey Snapper, was junior champion and reserve grand champion, and Shallenberger came in first on their spring gilt.

Dr. W. J. Fitts of Gallatin, Tenn., tied the ribbons in a very satisfactory manner.—The Duroc Sentinel.

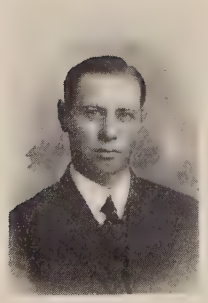
CHESTER WHITES CALLED BEST IN YEARS



R. H. Scott
Judge

The breeding classes brought out the largest Chester White Show that has been held at the Chicago International for probably the past eight or ten years, several of the well known herds competing for the prizes.

The sow classes consisted of a wonderful lot of good, typy individuals. Breeders standing around the ring were heard to remark on the great improvement in the Chester Whites in the past few years. There were a few outstanding boars which won the top prizes in their classes, and the champions were of a type that any breeder would be proud to have in his herd.

Redeemer's Monster was made grand champion boar by Judge R. H. Scott, of Nelson, Missouri. This pig was owned by Albert H. Stuart. Reserve champion boar was won by J. W. Kempe. The grand champion sow and reserve champion sow were both won by Albert H. Stuart.

HAMPSHIRE CLASSES WELL FILLED

E. S. Rennick
Judge

The Hampshire breeding classes were again well filled at the great International show. Four herds from as many states competed, and it was a hard fought show, with full entries all the way through.

Bonnie Brae Farm of Kewanee, Illinois, owned by Dr. J. H. Oliver, was the high winner of the show, capturing all the herd firsts, senior and grand champion sow and reserve grand champion boar. Their aged sow, Bonnie Braes Model, claimed by many to be one of our really greatest Hampshire sows, was the winning matron, repeating her victory of last year at this same show. That lady now has two years of sensational grand champion winnings.

That grand old boar, Twin Cedar Clan 1st, shown by Frank C. Oren, of Wilmington, Ohio, came through again at what will probably be his last show for grand champion Hampshire boar, being now almost six years old. He was a real ringside favorite and looked almost as good as he did three years ago, when he topped the National Swine Show. Oren also showed the junior champion show, a flashy senior sow pig, as smooth and typy as she could be.

The junior champion boar was one of those flashy junior boar pigs shown by J. A. Franklin from Midville, Georgia. He also exhibited the reserve grand champion sow in a big, typy junior yearling, Cliffie Cherokee 2nd.

Judge Rennick, of Nebraska, is to be congratulated upon the speedy, yet very capable, way in which he handled the show.—The American Herdsman.

TAMWORTH HONORS CLOSELY CONTESTED

I. M. Reed
Judge

The Fox Chemical Company, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Emerson Littlejohn, of Christiansburg, Ohio, competed in a close decision for the top honors of the Tamworth competition. Littlejohn finished with most of the blues, while both grand championships went to the Fox Chemical Company, with reserves to Littlejohn's nominations.

Another Iowa Tamworth establishment, that of Turner Brothers, of DeWitt, was represented by a show herd that gave a deal of competition to the Littlejohn and Fox Chemical Company entries, Turners' animals being the runners-up in most of the classes, with a blue ribbon going to this firm on their senior yearling sow.

Five of the six group classes went to Emerson Littlejohn, with the aged herd line-up headed by Fox Chemical Company's entry. Grand champion boar came from the aged class, and the purple ribbon in the female classes was awarded the aged sow winner by Judge I. M. Reed, of Oskaloosa, Iowa.

YORKSHIRE MEN STAGE GOOD SHOW

A. L. Anderson
Judge

Five well known breeders of the popular bacon breed, the large Yorkshire, brought out a lot of splendid individuals for the review of Judge Arthur L. Anderson, of the Iowa State College, Ames.

A Badger firm, Cudahy & Reed, of Palmyra, that has been a leader in popularizing this special purpose British breed in America, won the largest share of the top ribbons. They took away nine of the blue awards and were closely followed in number of first placings by the veteran Iowa promoter of Large Whites, B. F. Davidson, of Menlo, whose top placements totaled six. Whitehall Farm, of Yellow Springs, Ohio, came in for a blue on their junior yearling boar, and Turner Brothers, of Iowa, and B. R. Jackson, of Rockford, Ohio, had animals high in the money in a number of classes.

Davidson and Cudahy & Reed were given a grand championship apiece, the former taking it on his junior boar pig and the latter on their aged sow. Cudahy & Reed's aged boar was given the reserve championship and Davidson's junior sow pig took the reserve in the female division.

SPOTTED POLANDS IN SPIRITED CONTEST

L. A. Weaver
Judge

Three "Spotted" herds met in a spirited contest for top recognition, and to each went a taste of victory. The Wilt Farms, of Hillsboro, Indiana, took the majority of the blues, winning twelve. I. C. Lister, of Pulaski, Iowa, was given three, and Judge L. A. Weaver, of Columbia, Mo., found the junior boar pig entry of George Miller & Sons, of Fulton, Ind., the best of his class.

The Wilt Farms took all the group firsts save one, the produce-of-sow, which went to Lister. Miller's junior boar pig impressed the judge so favorably that he tied the grand championship ribbon on him, and he favored the aged sow winner of The Wilt Farms with similar recognition. Both reserve championships went to Lister, one on his junior yearling boar and the other on his junior sow pig.

TYPE OF SPOTTED POLAND CHINA BOAR

FAT SWINE DIVISION

Heavy Weight Barrows Make Final Bow

Skill in market swine production was demonstrated in its highest perfection when the 845 single barrow entries and the several hundreds of carload individuals were driven before the judges of the fat swine classes this year.

Barrow classes of all the breeds were large and well balanced, and, as many remarked who have been close followers of these contests for many years, higher quality was never evident in the International barrow classes.

Singularly, on this last occasion that heavy barrows are to be shown at the International, there was brought forth the largest and best exhibit of heavy weight representatives ever on view at this exposition. The champion barrows of all the breeds, except the Poland China and the Yorkshire, were from the heavy weight divisions. The Poland China champion was a pig from the class weight division of 250 to 350 pounds, and the Yorkshire was of the 170 to 210 pound classification of that breed. Likewise, the champion pens of the different breeds were composed of heavy weights, with the exception of the Duroc Jersey pen. Throughout it was a strong last stand for the big type barrows.

Only in the carlots did the judges pay obvious attention to market demands in making their decisions, that is as to giving recognition to the light handy weight pigs which the packers stress are of most commercial value in their yield of smaller, less wasty, more popular sized cuts in the retail trade. The champion load, Poland Chinas fed by Albert Kuenster of Wisconsin, averaged 245 pounds, which is the lightest weight champion carload of swine on record at the International.

BERKSHIRE IS CHAMPION BARROW

K. S. A. C. Standard, a Berkshire barrow exhibited by the Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kansas, carried off the premier honor of the Berkshire show and swept the grand championship prize money in the fat swine division of the 1929 International Live Stock Exposition. First in a ring of 15 head in the heavy weight class for purebred Berkshire barrows, farrowed after September, 1929, this barrow furnished the feature of the show.

E. J. Barker, Thorntown, Indiana, veteran breeder and judge of Berkshires, selected this barrow from the large number of Berkshire entries. He saw the qualities a grand champion should possess and selected him as the barrow that should uphold the Berkshire standard in the championship ring.

The Pennsylvania State College won first, second, and third in the middle weight class and fourth and fifth went to the entries of the Iowa State College.

The runner-up to the Kansas heavy weight champion was the winner of the light weight division shown by Ralph Breitwieser of Windfall, Indiana. Second and third went to Purdue University, fourth to the Iowa State College, and fifth to the Pennsylvania State College.

The pens and groups were all won by colleges, Purdue heading the light weight pen, Pennsylvania the mid dle weights, and Iowa the heavy weights. The best five barrows, get of one sire, went to Pennsylvania, as did also the ribbon for the best ten barrows weighing 200 to 250 pounds.

Iowa's heavy pen was champion, and Pennsylvania's middle weights reserve.

POLAND BARROWS A SPLENDID SHOW

Burlie Dobson
Judge

Judge Dobson of Lancaster, Wisconsin, in speaking about the champion barrow made the direct statement, "I never placed a better barrow; he was the correct type, weight, and, comparatively speaking, there was no waste about him." The barrow he made champion of the breed was later made reserve grand champion, under another judge.

The heavy weight class weighed 350 pounds and over. Iowa had the first prize entry in this class. An animal with a very good top and loin, very well balanced and in good condition, somewhat wasty about the head. Second place was won by Oklahoma A. & M. A well balanced barrow, not quite so high a percentage of high priced meat and a little wasty. Third place went to Iowa State on a barrow much the same type as No. 2, but a little coarser and wasty around the head.

The middle weight class weighed 250 to 350 pounds. First was won by Wisconsin on the entry that later carried off the championship honor. Second place was won by Purdue on a barrow very closely resembling the winner but was not quite so good throughout. Third was won by Minnesota, on a very nice individual but a little wasty about the head and a trifle baggy in the loin.

The lightweight class weighed 200 to 250 pounds. First was won by Purdue on a barrow very much like the middle weight winner but handicapped with the age, he had to be crowded. Second place went to Littlejohn on a barrow with just a little different type and a trifle plain. The Wisconsin barrow that placed third was a good barrow but lacked comparatively in finish.—The Swine World.

DUROCS APPROACH IDEAL TYPE

The Duroc show in barrows was about as good as we have ever seen at this event, and the champion of the Duroc barrow show comes very near the ideal for market type hog, excepting that his weight is much above any demand of the market today. This is the last year of the heavy barrows at the International, and we feel that it is a step forward toward getting the samples on display more nearly to the fat hog types which are most in demand at the market centers.

As usual the Duroc barrow show was almost entirely put on by the agricultural colleges. In one of the best Duroc barrow shows we have had, Oklahoma's heavy weight entry stood at the head of the class and was made champion of the breed. He is a remarkably well balanced individual. The Iowa medium pen went to the head of the group class. They were an extraordinarily good pen, finished just right.—The Duroc Sentinel.

CHESTER WHITES IN LARGEST SHOW

Arthur Tomson
Judge

Over two hundred and sixty head of Chester White barrows were entered in the International Live Stock Show, they having the largest number in the fat classes of any breed. There were so many more Chester Whites shown that both pens were required during the judging, when, as a rule there are two breeds shown at once. It was a wonderful show and was appreciated and admired by a large crowd gathered around to watch. Many good barrows were not placed.

In the light weight barrow class, 200 to 250 pounds, first, second and third were won by Purdue University on some wonderfully well fed animals, which also won first in pen class of the same weight. In the middle weight class, barrows 250 to 350 pounds, first was won by I. T. Hickman & Son of Marion, Ohio. There were some outstanding individuals in this class. J. W. Kempe took first, second and seventh in the heavy weight class on three large, smooth barrows of splendid finish. The first prize winner in this group won champion barrow and these three barrows won champion pen of barrows in the Chester White division. Later these same three splendid barrows won reserve grand champion pen over all breeds. Mr. Kempe was the only breeder competing for the grand championship over all breeds, the other barrows all being shown by colleges.

The reserve champion barrow of the breed was won by I. T. Hickman & Son on the first prize winner in the middle weight classes. Reserve champion pen was also won by Hickman & Son on three very good individuals.

Arthur Tomson of Wabash, Ind., judged these classes. Mr. Tomson has several times picked from the Chester White barrows an individual that has won grand champion over all breeds.

CHAMPION CHESTER WHITE BARROW, 1929
Owned by J. W. Kempe, Hinton, Iowa

HAMPSHIRES HAVE CHAMPION PEN

A wonderful pen of heavy weight Hampshire barrows, bred by Klein & Granzow, of Alden, Iowa, and exhibited by Iowa State College, rose to the very highest pinnacle of the 1929 International Live Stock Show—grand champion over all breeds. They were a typy, uniform, highly fitted pen, yet showing to a marked degree the firmness of flesh and the clean cut, trim body development of distinctive meat type.

The showing of Hampshires in the individual and pen classes was the strongest and best we have ever seen at an International. Its quality was most favorably commented upon on all sides. Professor L. A. Weaver of the University of Missouri, who most capably made the awards, said: "Hampshire breeders are to be congratulated on the good showing which their barrows made at this show."

Iowa State College also won the Hampshire reserve champion pen. Ohio State University scored on champion Hampshire barrow, but it was a mighty close race with the popular light weight entry of C. D. Streeter, which was made reserve champion Hampshire barrow.

Five agricultural colleges were in the Hampshire barrow contest: Iowa State, Oklahoma A. & M., Illinois, Purdue and Ohio State—with six breeders: C. D. Streeter, Simon C. Moon, Frank C. Oren, J. V. Bogner, Myron Mayhew and Turner Bros. While the colleges topped many of the classes, the entries of the breeders gave them a good run for the money.

There is a lesson in this year's International barrow show. In the first place, the heavier weights of barrows will be eliminated entirely at the 1930 show. This year the judges in the carload division bore down hard and heavy on the lighter weights that they have been asking for and on the less highly fitted kind, not those with all the fat they would carry. Sometime—maybe next year or the year after—the judges in the individual and pen grand championships are going to be doing the same thing. If that is the kind the packers want, the kind that their judges are going to put up, it's a pretty good idea for us to have them there, whether the packers be right or wrong—in single barrows, in pens and in carloads.—The American Herdsman.

TAMWORTHS INCREASE NUMBERS

This particular bacon breed had some strong candidates. More Tamworths were shown than for many years. The Fox Chemical Company, of Des Moines, Iowa, brought out a fine lot of barrows, winning often and carrying away the championship single and pen prizes with heavy-weights.

Emerson Littlejohn, of Christianburg, Ohio, and Turner Brothers, of DeWitt, Iowa, were top winners in several classes, with a reserve champion ribbon apiece, Littlejohn winning it on his barrow that headed the 200 to 250 pound class, and Turner Brothers on their first prize pen in the same weight division. I. M. Reed, of Oskaloosa, Iowa, judged.

YORKSHIRE SHOW ATTRACTIVE

"White bacon hogs make an attractive show. The Yorkshires are raised chiefly in those states on the northern edge of the corn belt and colleges from these states assisted by the veteran breeder, B. F. Davidson of Iowa, brought out the winners in as strong a show of barrows as the International has seen in recent years.

"Wisconsin had a very attractive string of entries, winning champion single pig on a 170 to 210 class porker. Their pen of the heavier weight was the best of the two which they had won. These classes were judged by Arthur L. Anderson, of the Iowa State College, Ames."—E. F. Ferrin, in the Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

QUALITY FEATURES SPOTTED POLANDS

The Spotted Poland China barrow show was up to average in numbers. In quality the show was superior to all its predecessors. Oklahoma A. & M. College won both individual and pen championships with the Kansas State Agricultural College a close second, winning both reserve championships.

In the light-weight class of barrows (200 and under 250 pounds) five head were shown. These were all nice clean pigs, but lacked the finish and smoothness generally found in older and heavier pigs. First easily went to Iowa State College on the better finished one of the group.

Kansas Heads Middle Weights

In the middle weight class (250 and under 350 pounds) the competition was somewhat more keen. Here seven were shown, three by Kansas State Agricultural College, three by Miller of Fulton, Indiana, and one by Iowa State College. The Kansas hogs took first, third and fifth, and Miller second and fourth. The first place barrow was quite a nice, well balanced hog, a little low in the back perhaps, and not as even lined as he might be, but he was better balanced and fitted than the second-place barrow. He later won over the light weight for reserve champion of the breed.

In the heavy weight class (350 pounds and over) the real show of the breed took place. Here twelve fine, heavy barrows competed for first place. Judge L. A. Weaver, of the University of Missouri, finally selected the Oklahoma barrow for first. He was well grown and quite well finished but might have been somewhat neater in some of the less valuable cuts. He won over Iowa for second place, whose barrow was less finished and not so well balanced.

Keen Contest for the Pen Tops

Placings in the pens were hotly contested. In the light weights, George Miller showed the only pen. In the middle weights the contest lay between the Kansas College and Miller. The former won on more uniformity and finish, coupled with better development. The heavy weight pen class comprised four entries. First went to Oklahoma, and Iowa followed a close second.

The championship class was decided by Judge Weaver in favor of the heavy weight barrow. The middle weight barrow was smooth, with length and good balance, although the back was not well arched, and when he came up against the heavy weight barrow that had all the good points possessed by the little barrow and in addition an excellent finish, there was little else for the judge to do but award it to the heavy.—The Spotted Poland China Digest.

CLOSE RACE FOR CHAMPIONSHIPS

H. W. Vaughan
Judge

H. W. Vaughan, head of the Animal Husbandry Department of the Montana Agricultural College, had the task of selecting the grand champion. Eight splendid individuals representing the eight common breeds of swine in the United States, were driven before him. They were all good. But from the first it was evident that the coveted honor rested between the Poland China champion barrow, shown by the University of Wisconsin, and the Berkshire champion, K. S. A. C. Standard.

Berkshire Wins

The Poland China barrow was smaller than the Berkshire, and of the class for barrows between 250 and 350 pounds. The Berkshire weighed 540 pounds. The Poland China was especially neat and tidy and nicely balanced in form, and was the favorite of many of the ringside. But Judge Vaughan thought that he did not carry quite enough finish, when compared with the Berkshire. The Berkshire won, being finished to the minute —neither too hard nor too soft, perfect in top and bottom lines, thickly and smoothly covered throughout, with a wonderfully wide back and straight side lines.

Reserve to Wisconsin

The reserve grand champion, fitted and shown by the University of Wisconsin, was a middle weight barrow (250 to 350 pounds). He was a Poland China. This was a very neat pig, nicely balanced in form, and tidy in every way. All other breed champions were heavy weight barrows (350 pounds and over), except the Yorkshire.

The corn belt could not concede superiority to the short grass country in producing its most common meat animal and so came back to win the grand championship for pens of barrows. The Iowa Hampshire pen, shown by the Iowa State College, upheld the name of the greatest hog growing state. The reserve grand champion pen, comprising heavy weight Chester Whites, was exhibited by J. W. Kempe, of Hinton, Iowa. All the other breed nominations for the pen grand championship were heavy barrows with the exception of the Duroc pen.

SWINE CARCASS CONTEST EXCELS PAST SHOWS

By M. D. HELSER

Hugo F. Arnold
Judge

The best carcass swine show ever held at the International, numbering 160 entries, was reviewed by Hugo F. Arnold, of Chicago.

In the light weight class for carcasses weighing 100 and under 200 pounds there were forty-two shown. It was necessary to have eleven of the hogs cut into wholesale cuts before the judge could finally decide on the three prize winners. J. H. Nickel and Sons, Arenzville, Illinois, won first and third on two uniformly finished Berkshires, and the Pennsylvania State College was awarded second prize on another Berkshire. The first prize carcass in this class was later awarded the reserve championship.

In the middle weight class, 200 and under 300 pounds, there were 60 carcasses shown with a cut of 18. A Berkshire shown by the Michigan State College won first. This was an outstanding carcass in every way. There was a very large proportion of fat to lean and the meat was firm and showed an excellent color. It was later made champion carcass of the show. Another Berkshire, shown by Iowa State College, won second in this class over a Poland China entry of the Kansas State College.

In the heavy weight class, 300 and under 400 pounds, there were 33 carcasses on view. The Berkshires, Poland Chinas and Hampshires divided the honors. First prize went to Pennsylvania State College on a Berkshire, second to the University of Wisconsin on a Poland China, and third to Simon C. Moon, Towanda, Illinois, on a Hampshire.

In the class for Wiltshire Sides there were 25 entries. Ohio State University won all three prizes on three neat, trim, well shaped Yorkshires. They were of excellent quality with just the right amount of fat.

The hogs were dressed and exhibited by Armour and Company. The champion hog carcass was sold to A. C. Dugan, of Chicago, for 30 cents a pound.

CARLOT WINNERS ARE POLANDS

F. W. Young
Judge

Albert Kuenster, veteran hog raiser of Glen Haven, Wis., carried off the highest honors with his load of Poland China hogs at the car lot exhibit yesterday afternoon.

Although he has raised and fed hogs for more than 30 years, this is the first time he has entered hogs in the International Live Stock Show.

Lightest Champions on Record

His grand champions averaged only 245 lbs., and will go on record as the lightest load getting the first prize since the show was first established in 1900. In 1910 a load of 247-lb. Polands exhibited by J. D. Waters won. But for the past seven years the winners have averaged well over 300 lbs. The award this year is regarded as more nearly in line with modern pork demand, and it is felt will have a profound effect on the character of future exhibits.

It is the first time that the Poland China breed has been awarded the highest prize at the car lot exhibit since 1911, when G. P. Arnston, Spring Grove, Minn., took the grand champion prize with Poland China hogs.

During the first eleven times that prizes were awarded at the International, this breed took the grand championship six times. During the first two years, of this period, mixed Poland China and Berkshires took first place. In recent years the Hampshire has been carrying off the first prize in the car lot show.

Kuenster's hogs are early April pigs, and were fed tankage, oil meal, barley, oats and finished on corn. Several other loads of hogs furnished plenty of competition for the grand championship prize, the strongest competition coming from the lighter weight hogs, according to the judge, F. W. Young. "It was more a case of finding the load of hogs that was the most uniform in weight, rather than picking out the best quality," he said. Many of those exhibited carried suitable quality for prize winners, but some of those of the best quality ranged from 130 lbs. to 250 lbs. in weight. Several loads of hogs that took prizes in their class were just a trifle too uneven to go at the head of the show."

More Light Weights Shown

The proportion of light and medium weight hogs in the show was the largest in a number of years, and, according to several of the exhibitors, an extremely heavy load will be an unusual sight in coming years. The Notre Dame University exhibited a load of hogs averaging 244 lbs. A year ago their entries averaged 361 lbs. when sold. In 1925 and 1926 the university took first prize with 350 lb. hogs. J. M. Ballard, the owner of the grand champions in 1927 and 1928 was the only feeder exhibiting hogs averaging more than 300 lbs. this year.—Chicago Daily Drovers Journal.

HOG CARLOADS SELL HIGHER

The grand champion load of hogs, Poland Chinas, raised by Albert Kuenster of Glen Haven, Wis., a man of long experience in the business, but a newcomer to the International Live Stock Exposition, brought $12.50 in the International auction, which was 50c above last year's price. They were sold to Oscar Mayer & Company. The champions in 1927 also brought $12.50. The Chester Whites, second prize winners, raised by Harry Kuhls, of Platteville, Wisconsin, also a newcomer to the show, brought $11.25. These two loads were the only ones above $10.90, yet only one load sold below $10.00, the range being $9.60@$12.50, against $9.00@$12.00 a year ago and $10.00@$12.50 two years ago.

Nineteen loads of hogs passed through the auction ring at an average price of $10.64, which was fully $1.50 above the general average price of hogs on the Chicago "open market." The average in 1928 was $10.10, in 1927 $11.28, and in 1926 $13.32. Only three loads of Poland China hogs were in the car lot exhibit, but averaged $11.18, being higher than any other breed. The two loads of Chester Whites averaged $10.87. Eight loads of Duroc-Jersey hogs averaged $10.61. The Hampshires, which took the grand championship prizes from 1918 to 1928, inclusive, with one exception, averaged $10.48, numbering five loads. A load of Berkshires sold at $9.60. Armour and Swift were the most aggressive bidders. J. M. Waters bid in six loads for Armour and one for Morris, while C. Southwick, representing Swift, obtained seven loads. R. B. Ellis bought four for Wilson.

JOHN CLAY SPECIALS REWARD QUALITY

The offering by John Clay & Company of $1,000 in prizes to the agricultural colleges on their International Live Stock Exposition exhibits of fat cattle, hogs and sheep drew out one of the very best collections of college-fed stock that ever competed for this distinctive and important feature of the show. Competition was open to all breeds of purebred and to grades and crosses as well.

Awards were more widely distributed this year, owing to keener competition. Iowa again took the lion's share with three firsts, one second and two thirds in the individual cattle class, second in best five steers, first in best five barrows, second and third in yearling wether class, third in best five wethers and first in best general exhibit.

Purdue was a runner up to Iowa, while Oklahoma came in for high recognition with a first, second, and championship in individual steers, third in best five steers, and second in best five hogs.

DRAFT HORSE DEPARTMENT

Exceptional Quality Is Keynote of the Draft Horse Display

By ELLIS McFARLAND

Ellis McFarland Supt.

Those who have followed the International for years could not deny the supreme quality of the draft horse exhibit at the 1929 show. Eleven states and two Canadian provinces were represented.

Many top animals in each class gave the judges a real job in picking the winners, especially in the Percheron and Belgian classes. Choice usually went to the drafty, thick made, heavy boned animal.

Suffolk and Percheron entries showed an increase over those in 1928. There was an unusually large number of imported animals among the Percherons and Belgians. France and Belgium must have sold their best, for contrary to other years we found them topping a few classes, rivaling the American breds, but as a whole they showed lack of training for the American ring.

There was general satisfaction with the awards. Everyone seemed to get a share.

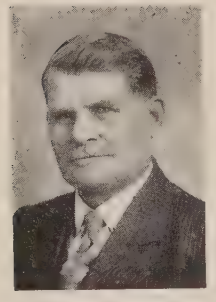
The Percheron entries showed a five per cent increase over those of 1928. The stallion classes were especially full. Both grand championships went to the Michigan State College on two big stylish, well matured, all black animals. It was the second International grand championship for the stallion and the third for the mare, a winning unique among Percherons in the history of this exposition.

Competition in the Belgian classes was intensely keen. Although the entries were not as numerous as those of the previous year, the quality was such that it was difficult to pick the prize winners. By a close decision the grand championship in the stallion division went to a handsome big animal from Iowa. Minnesota produced the grand champion mare which followed the performance of the Percheron mare in making it her third International grand championship.

There was about an equal number of Shire and Clydesdale entries. Illinois claimed the grand champion Shire stallion and Iowa the grand champion Shire mare. Both Clydesdale championships were carried away by horses from Saskatchewan, Canada. It was encouraging to find additional entries in the Suffolk classes and another exhibitor to share the prizes. Worthy draft geldings, representative of the Clydesdale, Percheron, Belgian and Shire breeds offered interesting contests in both halter and harness classes.

Buying during the International was average, the most outstanding sale was made by an Ohio breeder of prize winning Belgians, one stallion and three mares.

CLYDESDALE CHAMPIONSHIPS TO CANADA



James Pedley
Judge

Six breeders of the Scotch draft horse brought together a nice show of this spectacular breed which knows no rival for combined quality, style, and draft power, hence their predominance in such quarters as the exhibition six-in-hands, where uniformity, flash, action and size have for years made the Clydesdale impervious to defeat.

Three of the north central states, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois, sent representatives of the breed to the 1929 competition, and one Canadian, James A. Johnstone, sent a show string from his stables at far away Yellow Grass, Saskatchewan. Although A. G. Soderberg, of Osco, Illinois, rounded out his 50th year as an exhibitor of Clydesdales in the show rings of America at the 1928 exposition, and declared at that time that he was making his final appearance as an active participant, the call to return was too appealing to resist; so when entries came in for this year's event, there were among them those of this oldest proponent of the breed. They consisted of a few head that he had saved from his dispersal sale last year.

The aged stallion class was won by Boreland's Best, a nine-year-old that is heading the stud of a well known Badger Clydesdale firm, E. A. Jones & Sons of Bangor, Wisconsin. The red ribbon in this class was tied on Soderberg's Baron Adam. The three-year-old line was headed by James A. Johnstone's Sonny Boy, while the yearling victory was F. L. Anderson's on Royal Trooper. Anderson's farm is at Ross, Iowa. The winning stallion foal came down from Saskatchewan.

Eight aged mares made a nice class, with Anderson's Daisy Royal, the dam of the winning yearling colt, at the head of the line. Ken-Ro-Ka Farm, of Lake Forest, Illinois, had second on Peggy Diamond, a Soderberg bred mare. The Saskatchewan exhibitor brought out the three-year-old that most pleased the judge. Two very good two-year-olds were lined up, first going to Jones and second to Andrew W. Montgomery, of Hartland, Wisconsin. The Montgomery filly was an outstanding individual and struck the fancy of many along the ring side.

Ken-Ro-Ka Farm's filly, Betty Reliance, bred by Soderberg, topped the foal class. This baby comes rightly by her laurels, her sire being Green Meadow Reliance, last year's aged stallion winner, and her dam, Betty Jane, was second prize three-year-old at the 1928 show.

The group honors were shared by Jones, Soderberg and Johnstone. Stallion and three mares went to Jones, get-of-sire to Soderberg, and produce-of-dam to Johnstone, who also won both grand championships, one on the two-year-old stallion Sonny Boy, and the other on the three-year-old mare, Lady Trojan Mahomet. Anderson's Royal Trooper was stallion futurity winner and Jones' Palmata Boreland was filly futurity choice. James Pedley, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, judged.

PERCHERON EXHIBIT EXCELLENT

JUDGING COMMITTEE

The outstanding characteristic of the Percheron show at the 1929 International was the large stallion classes, in which a wide variety of greys vied with the blacks. Thirty-four exhibitors with 175 entries from ten states and Canada made the exhibit the largest it has been for many years. Heavy greys, imported from England and France during the year, gave the American breds cause for worry. Competition among the stallions was especially keen.

Sir Laet Champion Again

Sir Laet, which won the stallion grand championship honor last year for W. H. Butler of Columbus, Ohio, won it the second time for the Michigan State College of East Lansing. He is a heavy-boned, all black three-year-old, weighing 2,300 pounds. During the year he has developed marvelously, showing more than ever the weight and drafty lines of his famous sire, Laet. He was also senior champion and champion American bred.

Trumans' Pioneer Stud Farm of Bushnell, Illinois, was again winner of the reserve senior and reserve grand championships on an imported stallion. This year it was Chardin, a big grey five-year-old, imported early in the year.

Maple Grove Chadwick 2nd, an outstanding black and first prize winner in a large two-year-old class of 23 stallions, carried off the reserve champion American bred and junior champion ribbons. He was shown by the Holbert Horse Importing Company of Greeley, Iowa.

Lagos Mare's Third Purple Win

Blacks predominated among the mares. Maple Grove Leila had been awarded the grand championships of 1925 and 1926 and at the age of ten added a third, that of 1929. She is a wonderful deep-bodied, heavy-boned, black mare sired by Lagos out of a Jalap mare and was exhibited by the Michigan State College. Senior and American bred championships were added to her honors.

Susanna, an all black granddaughter of Laet, owned by Montcalm Farms of Phoenixville, Pennsylvania, was next in line for honors. She was made reserve grand, junior and reserve champion American bred.

J. L. Edmonds of the University of Illinois, A. B. Caine of the Iowa State College, and E. A. Trowbridge of the University of Missouri were the judges.

The get-of-sire class, with eleven groups shown, was headed by the get of Laet, winning for W. H. Butler the Premier Sire trophy offered by the Percheron Society of America for the champion sire of the show. Produce of one dam was headed by the colts of the famous old mare Rozelle, mother of two grand champion stallions, Jerome and Sir Laet.—By Ellis McFarland, Secretary Percheron Society.

SHIRE BREED HAS A GOOD SHOW

Shires were exhibited by a quintet of defenders of the attributes of this massive British draft breed. The exhibitor list included Trumans' Pioneer Stud Farm, for many years one of the country's leading sources of supply of the Shire horse, F. A. Huddlestun, a well known Iowa breeder and showman, Henry McCracken & Sons, proprietors of another Iowa stable whose winnings in the big shows have brought this breed to favorable attention, A. K. Basore of Ohio, and J. C. Moore of Illinois.

The McCrackens took the largest share of the blue ribbons, with Huddlestun next. J. C. Moore and the Trumans had one apiece. When it came to groups, McCrackens had their own way in every event except the best five stallions lineup in which Huddlestun scored.

Trumans repeated their winning of last year when Judges George McCray of Danville, Illinois, and James Pedley of Cedar Falls, Iowa, conferred the senior and grand championship on Laddie 2nd. This stallion has been a consistent winner, having been the junior champion at the 1927 International and the grand champion at last year's show.

Moore's yearling colt was singled out for the junior championship, and McCracken's reserve senior champion was made reserve grand champion. He was the three-year-old headliner, Hobbs Lot William. This same firm had the mare grand championship on their yearling filly, Tatton Ramona, while Huddlestun's senior champion Loula May Flower, was tied with the reserve grand champion ribbon. Moore won the stallion futurity, and the McCrackens a similar achievement in the filly futurity classes.

JUDGING COMMITTEE

The big handsome Belgians, chestnut colored, with heavy silvery manes, roans with rich black manes, pleased the ringside as they champed back and forth before the judges.

The Holbert Horse Importing Company won each of the three older stallion classes. Their Major de Malmaison was picked by Judges Harry McNair of Chicago, Professor H. H. Kildee of Ames and George Potts of Urbana, Illinois, as the best aged stallion. In the four-year-old class the same firm's Balzac de Bogaerden beat Earl Brown's Espoir d'Ath. They are two grand horses.

When Holbert's Apollon went to the head of the class of 13 three-year-olds, it was by no means and easy victory. His challengers were of exceptional quality, leading state fair champions being among them. C. C. Good & Son's two-year-old colt, Supreme Event, went to the head of the line, with Charles Wentz's very excellent Prince de Bois put in place just below him. The same combination of father and son developed the best of the nine yearling stallions in Oakdale Emblem.

Colleges had the two best stallion foals, the blue ribbon being tied on the entry of the Michigan State College and the red on a North Dakota nomination.

Mares a Class of Champions

It was said of the 14 aged mares that all had been champions at some big show in 1929 previous to the International. Tom Archer, in charge of Earl Brown's show string, moved Genese d'Ergot back and forth before the judges until they motioned to him to head the line. Her stallmate, an imported mare, Reconnaissante du Geron, was second. Charles A. Wentz came in third and Good fourth. Belle Phoenix headed the four-year-old class for the Michigan State College. There were only two three-year-old mares exhibited, both roans. Wentz got the blue on Woodrow Wilson's Annabelle and Good the red on Knollwood Supreme Queen.

The 11 two-year-old fillies were a great sight. Ravenche, a daughter of the famous show mare Pervenche, stepped lively until the judges decided she should be first. She came from the Michigan State College farm. Earl Brown got second position on Temptation.

Among ten yearling fillies Wentz topped the group with Litt's Lady of Longview. Brooklyn Ariste was second for Earl Brown. Ed Nearon got Cornelia up to third and Michigan's Lourette was fourth.

Either the band or the cold weather caused the ten filly foals to be playful as calves full of milk. Earl Brown had an extra sweet pair. Brooklyn Lady Espoir landed first and Brooklyn Ariste fourth. Between the Brown fillies were a couple belonging to Grant Good, Darlene Farceur and Bonnie Farceur.

When the senior champion stallion contenders were called out they all belonged to the Holbert Horse Importing Company. Major de Malmaison was picked for the senior championship and Balzac de Bogaerden got the reserve ribbon. C. G. Good & Son had both of the older colts that lined up for the junior championship alongside of the winning stallion foal from the Michigan College.

Then as the four horses were trotted out to compete for the chief distinction at the show, it was a fight between the Holberts and Good. If the judges had been compelled to make their decision on expert showmanship there would have been a tie, but after some discussion they pointed to Major de Malmaison for grand championship honors and Balzac de Bogaerden was made the reserve.

Wins Purple Third Time

In the mare division Brown's Genese d'Ergot was the favorite of the judges for the highest honors. This is the third time that this grand old mare has been picked as the best mare at the show. Reconnaissant du Geron, another Brown mare, was made the reserve. The junior champion mare was Ravenche, the Michigan co-ed.

Earl Brown had the best stallion and three mares, and also the best three mares. Good & Son showed with eleven entries in get-of-sire as well as in produce-of-dam and beat all the others in each class.

The Holbert Horse Importing Company had the winning group of five stallions and their four-year-old stallion Balzac de Bogaerden won the King Albert Cup, which is offered by the King of Belgium to the best Belgian stallion or mare that has not won such a cup before. Both of the grand champions had received this honor on a previous occasion, so the trophy this time went to the reserve grand champion stallion.—The Breeder's Gazette.

SUFFOLK EXHIBITORS INCREASE

Alex. Derwent
Judge

Another contender entered the ranks this year to challenge the Hawthorn Farm animals, which for many years have predominated the International Suffolk exhibit. This English breed of utility horse is singularly characterized by its uniform color and conformation. The newcomer is Fred H. Scheel, of New Lenox, Illinois. Judging by the names of the Scheel prize winners, they are the product of the Samuel Insull establishment, Hawthorn Farm.

The Hawthorn stables topped every class except the stallion foal and yearling filly lines which were headed by Scheel's entries. Champion stallion and champion and reserve champion mares were from the Hawthorn Farm, the mare purple winner being Hawthorn Sea Breeze, last year's champion as well, and the reserve champion stallion went to Scheel's Hawthorn Melody, his winning stallion foal.

Alexander Derwent of Rockford, Illinois, officiated as judge.

GELDINGS AND TEAMS ATTRACT MANY

The grade draft horse show, with its keen rivalry in inter-breed competition in the halter classes and its equally zestful and thoroughly spectacular contests provided in the single team, four-in-hand, and six-horse hitch events, still provide among the most interesting and entertaining features of the exposition.

Three judges, nationally known for their expert knowledge of the draft horse, were elected to pass upon these classes. They are D. J. Kays of Columbus, Ohio; J. L. Edmonds of Urbana, Illinois; and James Pedley of Cedar Falls, Iowa. Their first task was to review the halter classes, of which the aged geldings usually provide the closest competition, since this line-up is composed in the main of such choice selections and finished performers as comprise the exhibition teams.

Wilson & Company made the best showing in this event, leading out the first, second and fifth prize winners. The head of the class was the four-year-old Highland Lad, imported from Scotland to fill a place in the Wilson exhibition six-in-hand. He was followed by Bachelor, the 1926 International champion gelding. Third went to the Union Stock Yard Company's big gelding, Mack. He is a horse of much scale, though lacking in the style and flash that usually marks a winner here.

The fourth horse in this line was another Stock Yard Company entry named Victor, a gelding widely acclaimed for his flashy carriage, superb balance and true action. He was International champion gelding in 1925, and he has lost none of the bloom and freshness that made him a winner then. His admirers cited a slight limp due to recent shoeing as the only reason for his place down the line this year.

A Canadian bred grade Percheron mare, Barbara, shown by B. H. Moore, of Rouleau, Saskatchewan, was at the top of the three-year-old class. Second was Hassler's Clyde gelding, Proud Archer. F. L. Anderson of Ross, Iowa, led out the winning two-year-old gelding, a colt that was sired by Fairholme Black Trooper, himself a winner in the Clydesdale stallion classes at former Internationals.

The team classes were a feature of the night show. Their performances, as they were reviewed by the judges, were at the same time of much interest and entertainment to horse show audiences. The first of these classes were the heavy pairs, weighing over 3,800 pounds. They opened the Monday night program. Logically enough, the first and second prize geldings in the halter class, shown by Wilson, received the blue ribbon in the single team class. A drafty pair of geldings that tipped the beams at close to 4,500 pounds won the red ribbon for the Stock Yard Company.

The following evening when the light weight draft pairs were called out, consisting of teams weighing between 3,400 and 3,800 pounds, a pair of Wilson & Company's Clydesdales topped the class, and the Stock Yard Company's lighter weight flashy moving pair of the same breed came in second. In the non-professional draft horse event, the Canadian Percheron exhibitor, B. H. Moore, had the team that most impressed the judges. Sweet Briar Farm of Ohio had a pair of Belgians in second, and Jones of Wisconsin and Hassler of Illinois were third and fourth on Clydesdale hook-ups. Moore's Percherons also won the non-professional four-in-hand class, with teams shown by Flanery, Hassler, and Jones standing in the order named.

The rare sight of these massive geldings in tandem hook-ups was a popularly received event on the matinee program Friday. The Union Stock Yard & Transit Company's ideally turned and true moving lead horse, Victor, and their weighty wheel gelding, Mack, stepped their way into the judges' favor, Wilson & Company taking second.

HIGHLAND LAD

Champion Draft Gelding, 1929. Owned by Wilson & Company, Chicago, Ill.

Performance plus uniformity as to weight, color and type made the Chicago Stock Yard Company four-in-hand of Clydesdales worthy of their victory over the Wilson hitch of the same breed. Moore of Canada was third with a Percheron team, and Sweet Briar Farm of Ohio was fourth on Belgians.

The three six horse teams that finished in the top rank were Wilson's, the Chicago Stock Yard's, and J. F. Hassler's, in the order named. The Wilson six conformed best to the balance that custom approves for these draft horse six-in-hands. The Stock Yard team, while more drafty throughout, and at the same time comparing favorably with the Wilson six in quality, gave the impression of being out of balance, because the leaders appeared larger than the swing or middle pair. While the Hassler Clydesdale six was a splendid outfit, it lacked in performance and finish by contrast with the professionally fitted, trained and driven packing house and Yard Company hitches.

THE EVENING HORSE SHOW

Leading Stables of America Represented

O. T. Henkle
Chairman Horse Show Committee

Horsemen from fourteen states and one Canadian province sent the finest specimens of their stables to this year's International Horse Show.

The quality of their offerings was exceptional, and the performance of their entries in review of the judges each night furnished the thousands who visited the show with more than the usual amount of brilliant diversion. Entertaining innovations marked the program. Sheep dog trials were introduced and proved generally popular.

A collegiate polo match was held for the first time, marking the opening of the evening's program, while four of the leading mid-western polo teams furnished thrills for all in the spirited encounters they participated in throughout the remainder of the shows.

Six-in-Hands Applauded

Six-in-hand teams of ton weight draft horses, perfectly matched and flashily harnessed, brought ovations every night. Parades of live stock, representing the best herds and the leading prize winners of the 1929 state and Canadian show circuits, won the applause of the spectators.

The popular attendance at these events warranted the Horse Show Committee adding an extra matinee on Friday, which with matinee shows on Wednesday and the last Saturday brought the total number of performances up to ten.

This year's Horse Show carried out the same international aspect that marked almost every other department of the exposition. Saskatchewan was represented, as well as such distantly opposed parts of the United States as Oregon and Rhode Island, in addition to representations of the best known stables of the Midwest and the South. The Oregon entries were those of the Aaron M. Frank Farms of Portland, while the Rhode Island nominations were the show string of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church of Newport.

W. J. O'Connor
Secretary Horse Show Committee

Well Known Authorities Judge

Thomas W. Clark, of Edgemont, Pennsylvania, again officiated as judge of the pony classes; he also served on a committee of two with Harry McNair, of Chicago, judging roadsters, saddle ponies and three gaited saddle horses.

Mr. McNair acted alone as judge of fine harness horses and five gaited saddle horses.

Hunters and jumpers were passed upon by Richard Newton, Jr., and R. Lawrence Smith, both of New York City. A trio consisting of J. L. Edwards, of Urbana, Illinois; D. J. Kays, of Columbus, Ohio, and James Pedley, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, tied the ribbons in the draft horse team events. Robert A. Fairbairn, of Westfield, New Jersey, acted as associate judge.

MEAT EXHIBIT KEEPS PACE WITH THE TIMES

By R. C. POLLOCK, Superintendent

R. C. Pollock
Supt.

A vivid story of progress in the production of meat and its final preparation for the retail market was told by the Quality in Meats exhibit at the 1929 International Live Stock Exposition. The exhibit was comprised of a number of different displays of beef, pork and lamb carcasses and cuts. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that the agencies co-operating in presenting this feature had succeeded in assembling the best assortment of material since inauguration of the exhibit in 1924, both from the standpoint of educational value and attractiveness.

The exhibit occupied the space permanently allotted to it in the northwest corner of the main exposition building, and again the value of this location was very apparent as it is on the "main highway" traveled by nearly all visitors to the exposition. The record attendance at the show meant a record attendance at the meat exhibit.

Meat Board and Others Co-operate

Again the meat exhibit was sponsored by the National Live Stock and Meat Board in co-operation with the International management, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Institute of American Meat Packers, and state agricultural experiment stations. The large coolers which line two walls of the room as permanent fixtures were installed previously and are maintained by the United Cork Companies. A smaller cooler and a display counter were provided for the 1929 exhibit by the Dry-Kold Refrigerator Company, and refrigeration was supplied by the Baker Ice Machine Company.

The modern trend in meat production was emphasized through contrast of carcasses and cuts of today and yesterday. The heavy beef, pork and lamb carcasses which were popular several years ago and the lighter, trimmer carcasses of the present were hung side by side with wholesale cuts from each completing this picture of progress from the production angle.

The change in merchandising practices was shown by displays of retail cuts fashioned according to the latest approved methods and by an exhibit of carcasses and cuts of beef carrying the government grade stamp.

Modern Retail Cuts Shown

The modern retail cutting methods have been developed by the National Live Stock and Meat Board as a part of its program to further the interests of the entire live stock and meat industry. The methods have been demonstrated to the retail and wholesale trade and to housewives, students and others of the consuming public from coast to coast and have won high praise.

The new cuts are designed to meet present-day consumer demand and at the same time provide means whereby the retailer may make the most economical utilization of the entire carcass. In other words these meat cuts are keeping pace with the times. This is an age of small families, kitchenettes and automobiles. The housewife buys food in small quantities and is swayed in her selections by the attractiveness and size of the package. The meat cuts are fashioned accordingly.

Government Graded Beef on Display

In the largest cooler of the exhibit the first display in order was that of government graded and stamped beef. Here were shown four sides of beef, representative of the prime, choice, good and medium grades. In the foreground were the wholesale cuts from each of these carcasses. The ribbon stamp designating grade appeared on each of the carcasses and cuts. The exhibit was sponsored by the Institute of American Meat Packers, the Better Beef Association, the American Hereford Cattle Breeders Assn., American Shorthorn Breeders Assn., American Aberdeen-Angus Breeders Assn., and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The service of marking beef as to grade which was inaugurated in May of 1927 was fostered by the Better Beef Association and developed through the National Live Stock and Meat Board. The service has shown satisfactory growth and is continuing to progress.

It has been clearly shown by government surveys that the housewife's knowledge of meat is very limited. Selection of meat is, with her, a task wrought with uncertainty. The grade mark appearing on meat relieves her entirely of this troublesome task. If she sees the stamp on beef she knows at once its quality.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board continued its custom of distributing a meat recipe book during the exposition. A new publication, Seasonable Meat Recipes for 1930, was in heavy demand as shown by the fact that more than 10,000 copies were given out.

Pork of Yesterday and Today

Next to the grading and stamping exhibit was an exhibit of pork which brought out the contrast of past and present in pork styles. In the background hung six pork sides. The three on the left were typical of pork coming to market today—200 pounds live weight and producing 25 pounds of lard. At the right was the pork of yesterday—350 pounds live weight and producing 50 pounds of lard. On the shelf in the foreground of the cooler were the cuts from each type of carcass. It was pointed out that the light weight hog of today produces cuts convenient in size, popular in demand, and without excessive fat, and that the heavy cuts and excessive fats have made the hog of the past unpopular.

MARKED CHANGES IN PORK CARCASSES SHOWN

This contrast in weight was also carried out in the display of modern beef cuts which came next in the cooler. Two carcasses told the story of the changes in beef type. On the left was the beef of "today," the baby beef weighing 450 pounds in the carcass, and on the right was the beef of yesterday, the carcass weighing 800 pounds. A carcass and modern beef cuts in the foreground completed this display which was sponsored by the American National Live Stock Association, the three beef breed associations, and the Institute of American Meat Packers.

Directly across the room in the other large cooler were two displays—one of lamb and one of pork. The lamb display completed the picture of contrasts between the meats of yesterday and today in that it showed in the background carcasses typical of the demands of the times. Here were shown the modern lambs—35 pound carcasses—together with 70 pound wethers, which are not so much in demand at the present time.

BEEF CUTS OF YESTERDAY AND TODAY CONTRASTED

Animated Lamb Chart a Feature

An animated lamb chart formed the center piece of this display. An actual carcass of lamb hung in the center of this chart. Surrounding it were the modern lamb cuts with ribbons running from each to the part of the carcass from which it is obtained. In the foreground was a more extensive showing of the modern lamb cuts—rolled shoulder, rolled breast, Saratoga chops, neck slices and others which have met with such hearty response throughout the country. This display was sponsored by the National Wool Growers Association and the Colorado-Nebraska Lamb Feeders Association.

ATTRACTIVE CUTS SHOWN IN MODERN LAMB DISPLAY

The pork display adjoining that of lamb presented information of interest and value on "the relationship between finish and quality in pork." The display was sponsored by Purdue University and the story told was based on a study of 1,116 carcasses by the university.

The exhibit emphasized the point that good quality pork must be firm and that properly finished hogs yield firm pork. Sides and cuts drew vivid contrasts between finished and unfinished hogs.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN FINISH AND QUALITY SEEN HERE

At one end of the exhibit hall was a display depicting one of the latest and most revolutionary developments in the meat packing industry in the interest of marketing live stock products—the frosted retail meat cuts. The display included beef, pork, and lamb and showed steaks, roasts, chops and even stew meat prepared for the retail market by this method.

At the opposite end of the hall meats high in vitamin content such as liver, kidneys, sweetbreads, etc., were on display. The recent discovery of the value of liver in the prevention and treatment of anemia lent timely interest to these products.

Winning Carcasses Exhibited

On Thursday morning the displays occupying the two large coolers were removed and replaced by the winning carcasses in the Annual Carcass Contest. The carcasses were on display for the remainder of the exposition. On Friday morning they were sold at public auction.

MEAT JUDGING CONTEST ATTRACTS MANY

By R. C. POLLOCK, Superintendent

Nine universities and colleges entered teams in the Intercollegiate Meat Judging Contest at the 1929 International Live Stock Exposition. Those competing were University of Illinois, Iowa State College, Kansas State Agricultural College, University of Missouri, University of Nebraska, Ohio State University, Pennsylvania State College, South Dakota State College and West Virginia University.

The interest manifested in the 1929 contest gave ample assurance that the project is becoming more and more firmly established each year as a major educational feature. Instructors and students alike are thoroughly convinced of the value of meat judging in connection with their meats work. Through the contest students secure worth-while practical experience which could not be secured in any other way.

Fourth Year for Contest

The International Live Stock Exposition in co-operation with the National Live Stock and Meat Board introduced the Intercollegiate Meat Judging Contest into the exposition program in 1926, the contest last year being the fourth. Since its beginning the contest has met with enthusiastic response from universities and colleges throughout the country. The entry list thus far has not been larger only because of the fact that the meats departments of many of the schools have not yet been developed to the point which justifies participation. In this comparatively short time, however, remarkable development along this line has been noted at a number of institutions.

First place in the 1929 contest went to the Pennsylvania State College team which scored 2,332 points out of a possible 2,700. To win this honor Pennsylvania was high in judging beef, scoring 1,028 out of a possible 1,200, and M. P. Shuman, a member of the team, was high man in the contest and high in judging both beef and pork. The total number of points collected by Mr. Shuman was 816 out of a possible 900. In beef he scored 355 out of a possible 400 and in pork 274 out of 300.

The winning team was coached by Prof. P. T. Ziegler. The members were:

M. P. Shuman, Newburg, Pa. ..... A senior
G. W. Smith, Andersonburg, Pa. ..... A senior
G. F. Dye, Fredonia, Pa. ..... A senior

Iowa State College, coached by Professor M. D. Helser, came second in the final standing of the teams with a score of 2,277, and Nebraska, coached by Professor W. J. Loeffel, was a close third with 2,275. Iowa attained its position as runner-up without finishing first in any of the contest divisions, while Nebraska in third place had high team scores in pork and in lamb and high individual score in lamb. Guy McReynolds of the Nebraska team was the man who excelled in lamb.

Penn State Wins Trophy

Pennsylvania won possession of the National Live Stock and Meat Board trophy which it will retain for one year. The trophy must be won three times to become the permanent property of an institution. At the present writing Nebraska has two legs on the trophy, Iowa one, and Pennsylvania one. Nebraska was the winner of the first contest in 1926, surrendered the trophy to Iowa in 1927, won it back in 1928, and now has turned it over to Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania also was awarded an agricultural scholarship of $250, which is offered each year by the Pullman Company. Bronze plaques and ribbons went to those winning individual honors.

Nine Meat Classes Judged

The Meat Judging Contest was held in a cooler of the Wilson & Co. wholesale market. As in past years, the carcasses and wholesale cuts of beef, pork and lamb were divided into nine classes, each class comprised of four exhibits. There were two classes of beef carcasses, two classes of wholesale beef cuts, one class of pork carcasses, two classes of wholesale pork cuts and two classes of lamb carcasses.

Contestants were allowed fifteen minutes to study each class and take notes. The time then was devoted to writing reasons for placings—ten minutes to each class. After the students had completed their work they were entertained at a dinner by Wilson & Company.

The task of grading the papers submitted was in the hands of a committee composed of K. F. Warner, W. C. Davis, L. B. Burk and D. J. Slater, all of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; A. T. Edinger, formerly of the department; John T. Russell, past president of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers; and John A. Kotal, secretary-manager of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers.

COLLEGIATE LIVE STOCK JUDGING CONTEST WON BY PURDUE

J. H. Shepperd
Supt.

Purdue University accomplished another important victory at this year's International when five students representing this institution won the Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest, giving the Hoosier school its third winning among the fifteen contests to which it has sent teams.

The Indiana college thus becomes the owner for a year of the handsome bronze bull trophy awarded the victors of this event by the Union Stock Yard and Transit Company of Chicago, and gives them one leg towards the three winnings that the rules of this award require from a college in order for it to become the permanent possessor of the bronze. The Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, after its success in the 1928 contest, which was its third, was given full ownership of a similar trophy at the close of last year's exposition.

An award which becomes the outright property of Purdue University is the Sir Thomas Lipton cup, presented each year by the English sportsman-merchant to the college that sends the high scoring team. Another silver trophy, donated by the National Block and Bridle Club, was presented to the Hoosier winners. Two of the three Pullman Company's $250 scholarships, that were awarded to the Indiana school, were won on the basis of its having the team that did the most efficient work on all classes of live stock, and also by reason of the Hoosier contestants returning the highest score on horses.

One of these scholarships is given each of the high teams on judging horses, cattle, sheep, swine and meats, and the highest average record on horses, cattle, sheep and swine—the meats judging contest being a separate event. The distribution of the scholarships is left to the various college authorities who are in the best position to know who among their student bodies are most deserving of such financial aid.

The five members of the Purdue team were J. H. Douglas, H. B. Kirk, N. S. Hadley, J. C. Lowmon and R. L. Zell. Ohio State University's squad, with a record of 4,383, was a close runner-up to the Indiana quintet, whose score was 4,385 points out of a possible 5,000.

Team honors were shared in judging the four separate classes of live stock. Purdue scored high on horses. The Ontario Agricultural College was at the head of the list on cattle. The Oklahoma group made the best record on swine, and Ohio State University defeated all competitors in the sheep ring.

The five high men on judging all classes of stock were recipients of gold medals presented by the National Block and Bridle Club. They were Paul Swaffor of Oklahoma; Dwight E. Teegardin of Ohio; John H. Douglas and Harry B. Kirk of Purdue; and Maurice W. Soults of Iowa. Top ranking individuals on each of the four classes of stock judged were Paul Swaffor, Oklahoma, on horses and cattle; C. Gardner of the same college on sheep; and J. Wilson of Missouri on swine.

Success Laid to Shepperd and Staff

Professor J. H. Shepperd and his staff of able assistants from the North Dakota Agricultural College are to be credited with the success of this contest and its continued popularity throughout the years. Those who aided Professor Shepperd in the immense amount of detail work incident to conducting the contest and computing its results are T. H. Hopper, B. W. Fairbanks, Howard Lewis, A. Severson, L. Severson, K. Maltus, B. Oderkirk, William Guy, E. I. Olsen, S. G. Denmer and J. T. E. Dinwoodie.

Greatly appreciated are the services of the eight men who served as official arbiters of the event, and who donated their expert knowledge of live stock to serve an institution where youths are being trained to positions of similar skill and understanding. These men are Harry Stamp, W. H. Pew, H. L. Garrigus, E. L. Potter, D. A. Spencer, E. L. Shaw, W. L. Stangle and E. M. Christen.

This summary shows a well distributed list of "high man" winners following the first four contests.

It will surprise most people to learn that the 21 years in which comparable data is available that the high man has been from the winning team twelve and from a lower team nine years.

PURDUE AND IOWA TIE FOR PULLMAN AWARDS

At the past six Internationals, the Pullman Company has most generously donated $5,000 each year for 20 scholarships of $250.00 each. They are awarded to the colleges taking part in International contests, either of the show ring or student judging events.

Two of the three scholarships that Purdue was awarded this year were won by the high scoring of the live stock judging team from this school. Their score was not only highest on horses, but they made the highest average record on all classes, on which two counts the two scholarships were given. The third was presented the Hoosier institution on the winnings of its live stock entries.

Honors Shared Widely

Oklahoma took two scholarships, one on live stock and the other on the Sooner judging team's high score on swine. Ontario received one, because its team bested all contenders in cattle judging, and Ohio annexed two, one on the high score of its team in sheep judging, the other on live stock winnings. Two more of the scholarships went to Pennsylvania State College. It was their team that won the Intercollegiate Meat Judging Contest, which carried with it one Pullman award, and the winnings of their cattle in the ring brought them the second. The remainder of the scholarships was awarded entirely upon the basis of college live stock victories in the show rings. Of this group Iowa led with three; Illinois and Michigan had two each, and Kansas, Minnesota and Wisconsin one apiece.

The basis of awarding these scholarships is as follows:

1. To the college whose team does the most efficient work in the Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest, on horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, all classes of live stock; and grains and meats, one scholarship each.

2. The remaining thirteen scholarships were distributed on the basis of cash prizes won by the colleges in the open classes for International Exposition money only; the money of the Exposition that is won on the grain and forage exhibit not to be counted in this item.

3. The number of scholarships that can be allotted to any school is restricted to twenty-five per cent (25%) of the whole.

4. These twenty scholarships of $250.00 each must, in accordance with the Pullman Company's wishes, be awarded to twenty deserving students who would otherwise not be able to secure a scientific training in agriculture or animal husbandry; and this money must not, under any conditions, be divided among a greater number.

5. Students favored with the Pullman scholarships are to be paid this money in quarterly installments.

Administration

This fund is to be administered by trustees chosen by the directors of the International Live Stock Exposition, who will disburse the funds in line with the above rules.

The trustees shall receive from the students accepting the funds a promise to repay the money (if possible) obtained through this Foundation. The money thus refunded is then to be credited to the college originally winning the scholarship and to be made again available. By this means a permanent revolving fund, known as the PULLMAN COMPANY FUND, is to be created to aid deserving students who would not otherwise be able to secure a scientific training in agriculture.

NON-COLLEGIATE LIVE STOCK JUDGES SET RECORD

M. G. Thornburg
Supt.

Eighteen states sent teams to take part in the International Non-Collegiate Live Stock Judging Contest, most of them selected by means of state elimination contests, the highest scoring team winning the privilege of defending its state in the International event.

Oklahoma was again victorious. For the third time in succession a trio of youngsters from the Sooner state turned in the highest score. Totaling 1,593 points out of a possible 1,800, their record was not only highest in the 1929 contest but also broke the highest previous score of 1,537, set by the 1927 winners, who were also from Oklahoma and were incidentally coached by the same man, J. B. Taylor. He is to be congratulated upon his remarkable success with two different sets of boys.

The high boy on the Oklahoma team, all of whom were from Rogers county, was John Ramsey, a sixteen-year-old 4-H Club leader in his community at Claremore. John is president of the local 4-H Club, and for the last year has studiously prepared himself, along with his team mates, for the honor of representing his state at Chicago. John's score of 541 points, though one point under that of Evert Neal, of Iowa, high individual in the contest with a score of 542, is eleven points higher than the best score turned in a year ago in this event.

Scholarships to Winners

The Chicago Association of Commerce offers $1,000 to be divided into three awards of $500, $300 and $200 to the first, second, and third high scoring individuals in this contest, to be awarded in the form of scholarships in an approved agricultural college when the high school work of the winner is completed.

The top scorer of this year's judging contest was Evert Neal of Mt. Vernon, Iowa. Evert is entitled to particular commendation. Although now only 18 years old, he was winner of two important live stock judging contests prior to this International. He was high individual in the Iowa state contest in 1929, and at the age of sixteen won the title of best judge in a state-wide contest for juniors. He will put the Chicago Association of Commerce $500 scholarship award to immediate use. He is graduated from high school and will enter the Iowa State College this year.

The $300 scholarship going to John Ramsey will aid his plan to attend his state agricultural college when the time comes for him to enroll two years hence. The third of the Chicago Association of Commerce scholarships, one for $200, goes to Otis Munson, the second ranking boy on the Oklahoma team and third in the contest. Otis, who is eighteen, has been an enthusiastic 4-H Live Stock Club member for the past five years, and during this time he has raised, fitted, shown and marketed 29 head of live stock.

Third of the Oklahoma trio and eighth in the contest was Cleat Willhoite, an eighteen-year-old farm youth. That he is a consistently good judge of live stock is not only borne out by his splendid score in this event, but by his achievement at several of the leading judging competitions of the Southwest previous to this year's International. On one occassion he was high scoring individual, and on another, second.

As in past years the smooth conduction of this contest is to be credited to the direction of M. G. Thornburg and Carl N. Kennedy, of Iowa. Acknowledgment should also be made to two other Iowa men who were active in the supervision of the contest, Harry Linn and C. A. Oldsen, and to those live stock authorities who so generously donated their services as judges. The coaches themselves are deserving of unstinting praise for their success in developing such expert knowledge of live stock in these young people of the farm.

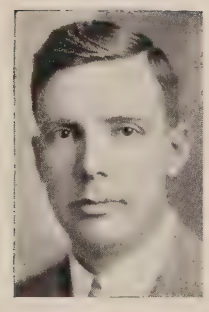
JUNIOR ACTIVITIES

Youths from 44 States Attend Club Congress

By G. L. NOBLE



G. L. Noble
Supt. National Boys' and Girls' Club Congress

The Eighth National Boys' and Girls' 4-H Club Congress held in connection with the 1929 International Live Stock Exposition, was considered the best and most enthusiastic reunion of the National 4-H Club family ever held since the first 4-H Club Tour in Chicago was inaugurated in 1919.

Activities of the week were based upon the results of the handiwork of approximately 750,000 4-H Club members, organized in every state of the union, carrying on club projects in their home and their community. Delegates to the Club Congress were rural champions, who by their outstanding achievements won the right to represent their fellow club members at the Congress and participate in its program, demonstrating to the public the value and soundness of the 4-H Club movement.

In 1929, 1,052 boys and girls from 44 states and a province of Canada were judged worthy of this honor. They were accompanied by their national, state and county club leaders, making a total attendance of 1,281 at the Club Congress. State delegations are limited to 50 representatives each year.

Considering the number of exhibits and entries in the various contests of the week, the 1929 Club Congress was the largest and best in its history. New exhibits included individual cotton; state and individual sweet potatoes; state and individual exhibits of eggs, and additional exhibits in the preserved food class. The new contests included a crops judging contest; a poultry judging contest; the judging of meat for quality; a national 4-H garden contest; a special canning contest, and a clothing demonstration team contest of the north central states.

Paul C. Taff
Associate Superintendent

Every state in the Union is invited to make entries in the various exhibits and contests. The National 4-H Club Congress is the final annual show window of 4-H Clubdom. Its purpose is to give opportunity for competitive demonstrations, exhibits and judging contests; to make possible the development of enthusiasm among rural youth and their leaders through contact, discussion and work and play programs; to furnish the Club Congress delegates an educational program with tours in and about the "agricultural capitol of the world" so that they will have a keener appreciation for the inter-dependence between agriculture and industry; and finally, to extend the 4-H movement so that its membership will reach a million boys and girls of the farm by 1932.

The Club Congress is made possible through the co-operative efforts of the State Agricultural Colleges, the United States Department of Agriculture, the International Live Stock Exposition, a large group of national and local business and farm organizations, and the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club work.

4-H POTATO SHOW GROWS

With new classes offered for state and individual exhibits of sweet potatoes, the 1929 4-H Potato Show became one of the most conspicuous exhibits in the Boys' and Girls' Club building. Entries in the Irish potato classes were the largest in the show's history. Wisconsin won first place in the state exhibits in a field of 10 entries. Each state showed five exhibits of 32 potatoes each—each exhibit being the product grown by an individual club member. In the individual classes 75 entries, consisting of seven different varieties, were shown. Each individual exhibit consisted of 32 potatoes.

The sweet potato classes of the potato show proved a popular innovation. The requirements for state and individual exhibits were the same in these classes as in the "Irish" show. There were three entries in the state contest, which was won by Louisiana. In the individual contest three different varieties and a total of 20 exhibits were shown. Potato show awards were made as follows:

TEXAS DELEGATION IN CHARGE OF GEO. W. JOHNSON, STATE CLUB LEADER

MOSES TROPHY TO LEADERSHIP WINNERS

For the third time since the National 4-H Leadership Contest was inaugurated in 1924, a boy or girl club member from Oregon and Oklahoma won it. This year they were Lois Bailey of Oregon and Theodore R. Lorenz of Oklahoma, selected as the outstanding girl and boy club member and leader of the 750,000 4-H Club members now enrolled in the United States.

The National Leadership Contest is conducted each year by the separate states in co-operation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture and has come to be one of the most prominent features of the Club Congress. The high scoring boy and girl were each awarded a trophy presented by Horace A. Moses of Mittineauge, Massachusetts.

Lois Bailey, who is 16 years old, first enrolled in 4-H Club work in 1924 and has been a local leader for five years. In her club work she has completed 26 project years of work in eight different projects. She has made 153 exhibits at community, county, state, interstate and national shows, winning $1,049 in prize money and a number of educational trips. She competed in 33 judging contests and made 148 public demonstrations as a club member.

As a club leader she has organized 23 local 4-H Clubs and secured 268 new club members. She has coached 26 demonstration teams that have given 89 public demonstrations. Members of the clubs she has conducted have made 269 exhibits of their projects. During the past three years in her leadership work she has made public talks and demonstrations on 4-H Club work before audiences totaling 20,000 people. She will enroll in the Oregon State Agricultural College in the fall of 1930 and states that the prize money she has won in club work will be used for her college education.

Theodore R. Lorenz, 20 years old, has been a 4-H Club member for nine years and a local leader for six years. He has completed 35 project years of work as a club member in 10 different projects. He has made 271 exhibits of his project work, given 32 public demonstrations and competed in 42 judging contests.

As a club leader he has enrolled 199 new club members and has been the leader of 10 local achievement clubs. He has coached 49 demonstration teams that have made 52 public demonstrations and has been instrumental in developing 26 judging teams. Club members enrolled under his supervision have made 412 exhibits of their projects. In the course of his activity along this line he has made 255 public talks and two radio talks on 4-H Club work. Theodore enrolled as a freshman in the Oklahoma A. & M. College at Stillwater in the fall of 1929.

Winners of honorable mention for national leadership honors were Norman J. Rada, Wisconsin, and Verle Kaiser, Washington, second and third, respectively, in the boys' contest, and Velma Milstead, Oklahoma, and Anne Schubring, Minnesota, second and third in the girls' contest.

LIPTON CUPS CARRY HIGH HONOR

Helen M. Haldiman of Wisconsin and J. Christopher Patrick of South Carolina were named winners in the 1929 National Project Record Contest. Entrants are scored on the application of their project work to community needs, use of improved practices, increase in size of projects, and income from their 4-H Club projects. Winners of the contest were each awarded a silver trophy donated by Sir Thomas Lipton, English sportsman and merchant.

Helen Haldiman, aged 17, a senior in high school, has been a club member for five years. She has completed projects in dairying, clothing, food and baking, canning, and room improvement. In her club work she has completed 19 different projects, the total profit of which has amounted to $457.50. She has taken an active part in 4-H activities in her county and state. During 1929 she was secretary of her county 4-H organization and the leader of a club of 19 girls.

J. Christopher Patrick, age 19, has been a club member for nine years, during which time he has completed 32 project years of work. He has done outstanding work in pig, calf, cotton, sheep, and corn club projects. During the nine years he has made a net profit of $5,793 from club work. In the fall of 1929 he entered his state agricultural college at Clemson College, South Carolina, and is using money earned in club work to pay his expenses there.

Geraldine G. Fenn, South Dakota, and Ruby A. Richardson, Indiana, placed second and third, respectively, among the girls. In the boys' contest, Richard Goodwin, New York, and J. D. Edmonson, Oklahoma, were second and third.

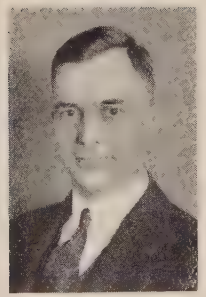
HEALTH CHAMPIONS SELECTED

The fourth "H" in the 4-H Club program was given a decided boost in the seventh annual National Health Contest. This was the seventh consecutive year in which the scoring was conducted by the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund in co-operation with the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club Work, the State Agricultural Colleges and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Since the beginning of this feature conducted annually during the International Live Stock Exposition, an increasing number of states have inaugurated state health contests and scores of additional county agents and county club leaders have sponsored county contests.

Florence Smock, Florida, and Harold Deatline, Indiana, were declared the health champions with a score of 98.7 and 99.2, respectively. Twenty-eight contestants from 16 states competed. From this group five were selected for honorable mention. Those winning this honor were Ferdinance Basting, Illinois; Hope Hadley, Iowa; Herbert Cutter, Kansas; Mary Virginia McNeal, Mississippi, and James Orr, West Virginia.

A FEW OF THE CHAMPIONSHIP WINNERS, 1929

JUNIOR FEEDING CONTEST CENTER OF ATTENTION



E. I. Pilchard
Supt.

With the International grand champion steer coming from the Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest ranks a year ago, it was a foregone conclusion that on the opening day of this year's exposition, when the contest was held, interest would be concentrated on this all around youthful event.

Though none of the participants, by the rules of the contest, exceeded 20 years of age, there nevertheless were seen at the halters in most every class a number of past-masters who had already made names for themselves by their successes at former editions of the exposition.

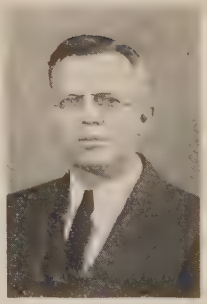
Naturally Emma Goecke, who showed her brother's steer on the day he was declared grand champion last year, attracted no little notice when she appeared with her four entries in the Hereford division. She did not disappoint the expectations of her admirers. Two of her entries, half brothers to the 1928 champion, were put up by Judge H. W. Vaughan, of Bozeman, Montana, one heading the senior yearling, and the other the summer yearling class. In the Calf Showing Contest she was also victorious.

Many Young Veterans Take Part

Other well known "veterans" of the junior ranks were Tim Pierce, of Creston, Illinois; Bob Wilson, of Muncie, Indiana; and Harold Hassler, of Manning, Iowa—all three strong supporters of the "Blacks;" Ray Greathouse, of Hindsboro, last year's showmanship contest winner; Buelah Larson, of Harlan, Iowa, whose two firsts in the 1928 Junior Contest were duplicated in the open Shorthorn competition; and Gerald Hitchings, of McCoysburg, Indiana, twice exhibitor of the champion barrow.

This year's Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest brings into particular prominence four new names: Waldo Mommsen, of Miles, Iowa; Marcel Zink, of Verona, Wisconsin; thirteen-year-old Fay Ljungdahl, of Manhattan, Kansas; and eleven-year-old Ruth Henry, of Charleston, Illinois.

Waldo Mommsen, who gives his age as 18, showed the champion steer of the Junior Contest, a grade senior-yearling Angus. He did not stop here, however, but went on with his charge to the reserve grand championship of the entire exposition, being beaten only by Elliott Brown's junior yearling Angus steer that Judge Biggar chose for his grand champion.



J. S. Quist
Asst. Supt.

Elliott's name is familiar to these columns, he having been a prominent figure in International Junior Feeding Contests for a number of years, the 1928 exposition being the last at which his age would permit him to compete. He will be remembered as having shown the reserve champion of the 1828 contest, his calf standing next to the Goecke champion. Interestingly enough, Elliott was just 10 days over the age limit that would have permitted him to show in the Junior Feeding Contest this year; so his stellar victory is looked upon as belonging practically, if not technically, to the junior camp.

Wisconsin Sends Reserve Winner

Marcel Zink is a coming beef cattle man from the rich farming country of southern Wisconsin. His grade Hereford steer calf was not only reserve champion of the Junior Contest, but also headed his class in the open competition for grade and cross-bred steers. In fact the top winners in the four open class divisions of the grade and cross-breds were all youngster owned and shown, with Waldo Mommsen's charge heading the senior yearling class; 15-year-old Melvin Simonsen, of Hudson, Iowa, the summer yearlings with his grade Hereford; Elliott Brown, the junior yearlings, and Marcel Zink, the calves.

Fay Ljungdahl won a spot in the limelight with her pet steer, Crestwood Alladin 2nd, a senior yearling Angus, that was seventh in his class in the Junior Feeding Contest, and which, when entered in the carcass competition, was made the champion beef carcass. Orville Aves, a fifteen-year-old farm boy of Melbourne, Iowa, was her closest competitor, his Angus summer yearling steer that stood fifth in his class in the Junior Contest was found worthy of reserve championship when reviewed by the judges of the carcasses.

Ruth Henry's Shorthorn entry stood second to that of Stuart Peterson, of Galesburg, Illinois, as they were lined up by Judge Vaughan in the junior event, but in the open competition, Judge Biggar put her nomination to the top of the senior yearling line, and later made her stylish all white charge, Fashion's Favorite, the champion Shorthorn steer.

A 16-year-old boy, Ernest Moore, of Eaton, Indiana, showed the champion pen of lambs—Southdowns—and Myron Mayhew, a Mercer county, Illinois, youth, was successful in the barrow show, winning on a Hampshire.

Wilson Scholarships to Three

The three winners of the $300 scholarships and gold medals presented by Thomas E. Wilson for the best all-around live stock achievements in junior agricultural activities were Carl Duis, of Milford, Illinois; John Swaim, of Marshall, Indiana; and Hilton Briggs, of Morning Sun, Iowa. A benefice in which all of the exhibitors in the Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest shared equally was the $1,000 in cash that were given by a director of the exposition to be divided among as many as were exhibiting, so that no one, in a sense, went away unrewarded.

As the preceding chapters on the different departments and classes of the exposition give testimony, the "young blood" side of the International has given new life and vitality to the show, and it takes no crystal gazer to foresee that the future growth and improvement in these agricultural shows—and indeed, the whole farm industry—has possibilities unbounded, when the time is considered that these expertly trained and enthusiastic young people will mature into the ranks of senior live stockmen and farmers. Witness one of the junior department's most youthful graduates, Elliott Brown, feeder and exhibitor of an International grand champion steer his first year as an adult showman.

The exposition management wishes to express its appreciation for the valuable services of the contest's superintendent, E. I. Pilchard, of Urbana, specialist in Junior Club work in Illinois, and to J. S. Quist, assistant superintendent, who is active in 4-H extension work in Iowa and a staff member of the Iowa State College.

GRAIN AND HAY SHOW

World Wide Exhibits Attest Crop Improvement

Thos. Condon
Asst. Supt.

The Eleventh International Grain and Hay Show opened its doors to a display of the choicest grains, small seeds, and hay from thirty-three states and five Canadian provinces, as well as distant New South Wales. The excellent quality of these products of the soil stood as concrete evidence of the worth while strides made in plant breeding and crop improvement in the most important agricultural sections of the world. Improvement in the quality of exhibits at this show has been frequently commented upon by many interested in this department of the exposition.

Awards were widely distributed. Splendid co-operation from the crop improvement associations and agricultural colleges assisted materially in promoting interest and in making the show a success. Two states, five provinces, and four Canadian organizations offered special premiums which attracted a large number of entries from their territories. The best samples from several state seed shows were brought intact to Chicago for further competition.

Samples Prominently Displayed

The exhibits were again displayed by states and provinces in locked cases and racks and a special display of the champion and first prize samples was arranged with the trophies. Enclosed judging sections were provided for small grains downstairs and for corn upstairs with bulletin boards giving the names of the judges and the classes being examined. The walls were lined with instructive educational exhibits and the whole presented a highly interesting picture to the agricultural-minded visitor who entered the two halls occupied by the International Grain and Hay Show.

Corn championship honors were shared by three states. For the second time in the annals of the International Grain and Hay Show L. M. Vogler of Hope, Bartholomew County, Indiana, won the title of Corn King when his ten ear sample of Johnson County White was awarded the grand championship. Mr. Vogler held the same honor in 1925. The reserve grand champion was awarded to a sample of Reid's Yellow Dent grown by C. E. Troyer of La Fontaine, Wabash County, Indiana.

The champion single ear of corn was of the Yellow Dent variety exhibited by John L. Pflantz of Hannibal, Marion County, Missouri. Kenneth S. Dice of Crawfordsville, Ind., grew the ear of corn chosen as the reserve champion.

Illinois Boy First

INTERNATIONAL CROP IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION BOOTH

The International Crop Improvement Association again called attention to the desirability of using certified seed produced by the different state crop improvement associations which compose its membership. Many of the new varieties developed by the experiment stations and shown in the adjoining exhibit are available to farmers through the improvement associations. Professor K. E. Beeson of Purdue University was chairman of the committee in charge of this exhibit for the Association.

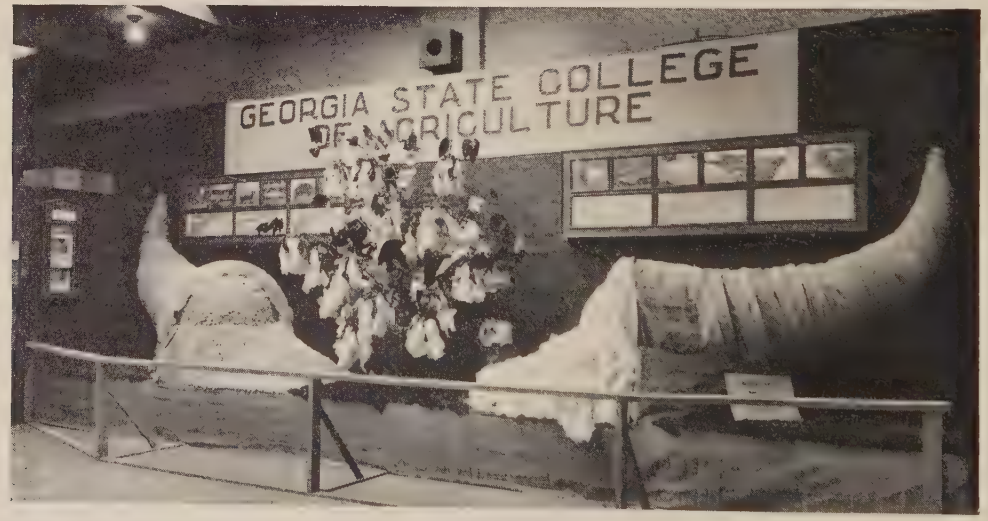
EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITS INCREASE

More agricultural colleges and experiment stations contributed educational exhibits this year than at any time in the past, necessitating using not only the walls surrounding the Grain and Hay Show but also three new locations. The University of Tennessee and Ohio State University were represented in this department for the first time and Iowa State College sent an exhibit for the first time in several years.

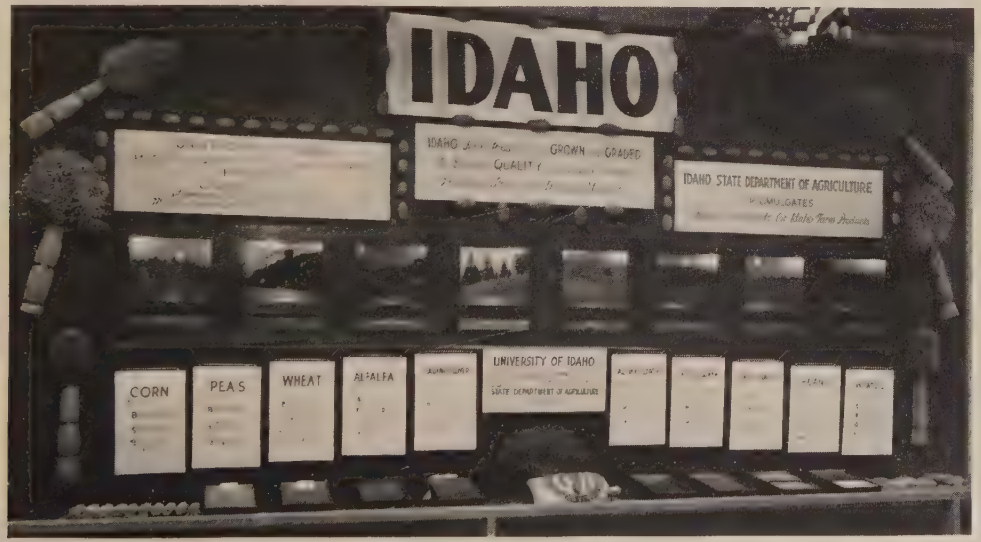
The European Corn Borer Control of the United States Department of Agriculture furnished a comprehensive display designed to instruct farmers of the corn belt concerning the best methods of combating this serious pest. This time corn borer experts emphasized the use of machinery in control work, showing many simple attachments for the ordinary farm machinery which have been developed for this use by the Bureau of Public Roads, the U. S.

Department of Agriculture, and co-operating agricultural engineers. Other important phases of this subject that were stressed were the value of clean plowing and the effect on the yield of varying degrees of infestation. A large staff assisted in assembling this exhibit, which was in the active charge of Mr. P. A. Howell.

Georgia State College of Agriculture this year presented an exhibit dealing with the cotton crop and the use of cottonseed meal as a live stock feed. Mr. K. E. Litton and Dr. M. P. Jarnagin were in charge.



The University of Idaho centered its exhibit around improving the superior quality of crops grown in that state so that they can be successfully sold at a premium on far distant markets. Samples of many crops were exhibited and illustrations given to show how the University and extension service encouraged careful crop improvement while the State Department of Agriculture enforced rigid official grading standards. The crops included corn, peas, wheat, alfalfa, alsike and red clover, oats, barley, beans, potatoes and ladino clover. Mr. J. D. Remsburg, Jr., directed this display.



The University of Illinois sponsored an extensive exhibit dealing with many phases of the alfalfa crop. It was under the direction of Mr. R. G. Morris. The story of this important crop was shown in eight panels, each one bearing colored illustrations, concrete information being supplemented by actual samples and models. This exhibit introduced the novel use of wall paper and paper fringes to form a colorful background.

Among the subjects covered in the exhibit material were the advantages of using alfalfa to maintain soil fertility, improve the farm rotation, increase net returns and as a feed for live stock all year around.

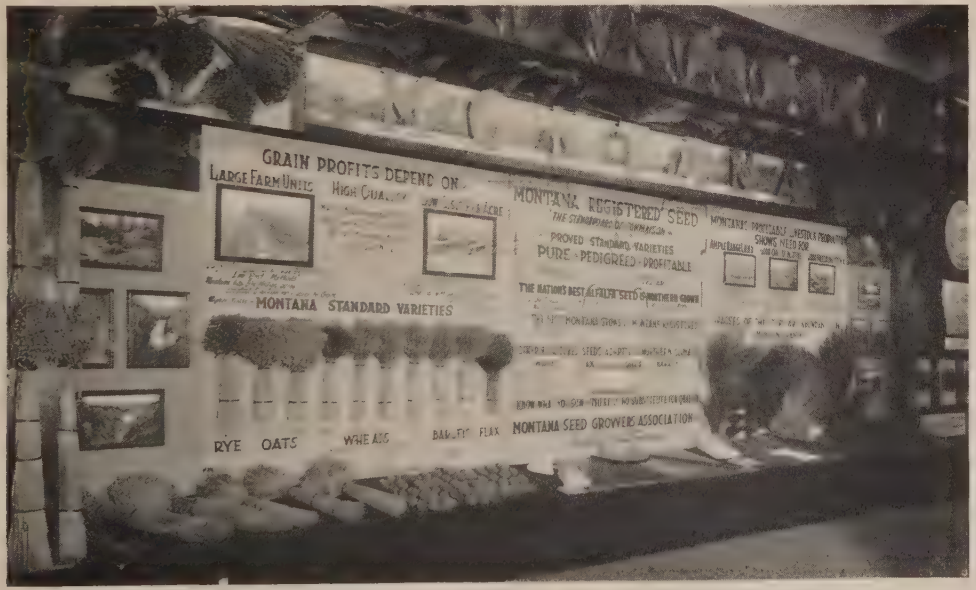
The well known Iowa Corn Yield Test was portrayed by the Iowa State College under the direction of Professor J. L. Robinson. Samples of the different varieties standing highest in the various sections of the state were exhibited. A striking feature was a pile of corn which represented the large amount of that crop produced in Iowa every time a concealed bell rang.

Michigan State College selected as its theme this year the red clover crop, "A Rugged Michigan Pioneer," which had proven its dependability and many uses. A feature was a display of old hardy strains of red clover which have been grown on the same farms for a long period of years.

A map of the state indicated the location of each farm and a connecting ribbon identified the corresponding sample and card with detailed information as to the grower and number of years he has been producing that particular strain. Visitors were struck with the remarkable history of the different strains, dating back through several generations to the days of the pioneer farmers. Mr. R. H. Morrish and Mr. R. E. Decker were in charge.

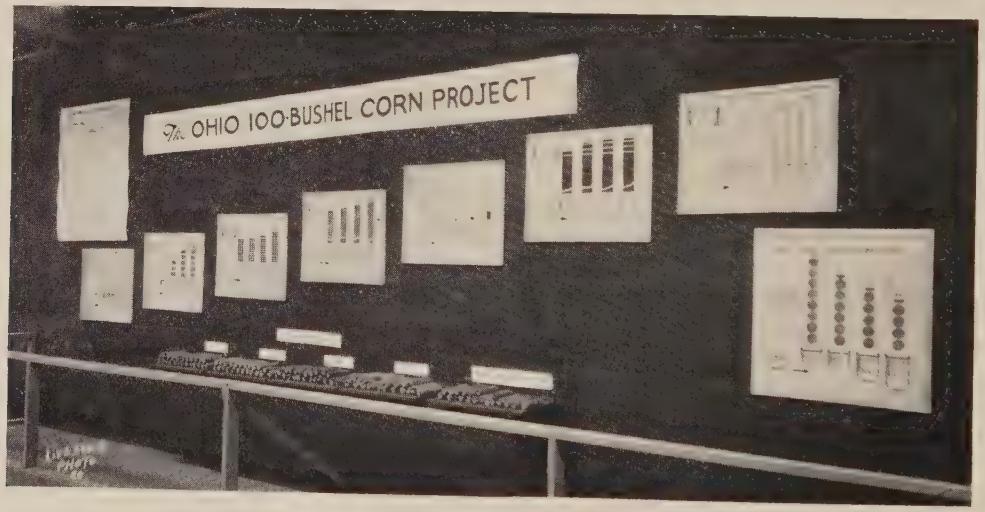
Montana State College was represented by an elaborate and artistic exhibit featuring the grasses of that state upon which its live stock production is profitably based. Other sections were devoted to grain production and the distribution of superior seeds through the Montana Seed Growers' Association. Professor Waldo Kidder explained the lessons of the exhibit to inquiring visitors.

The recent popularity of vacation tours for corn belt farmers was brought out by attractive views in the National Parks of that state. The use of large farming units to produce grain at a low cost per acre under Montana conditions was clearly brought out.



Ohio State University brought to the attention of visitors the various factors which influenced yields in the Ohio 100-Bushel Corn Project. The results of several years' work were summarized and presented in concise form by means of illustrated charts. Samples of corn adapted to Ohio conditions and ears from the champion ten-acre field were displayed under the direction of Mr. John A. Slipher.

Ohio was a pioneer state in sponsoring yield contests and has accumulated and analyzed a vast amount of valuable information from these tests which was made available to visiting farmers from other sections of the country to this exhibit.



Ontario Agricultural College, as in the past, was represented by a forceful and artistic exhibit which this year dealt with the theme that "Lamb Has a Place in the Sun." Professor John Buchanan again personally designed and directed this exhibit. A feature was a refrigerated showcase containing cuts of over-fat and extreme lean carcasses as compared with the desirable type recommended by the college.

Moving display cards bearing illustrations conveyed to the visitor in a few moments the story of the Canadian lamb. The central theme was a beautiful pasture scene in colors showing a flock of sheep scattered on a hillside with one on the crest of the hill outlined against the brilliant glow of the setting sun.

Purdue University, according to custom, exhibited a double display which this year dealt with the feeding of lambs and the use of adapted strains of corn. Professor J. W. Schwab was in charge of the animal husbandry contribution, which featured the use of oats in place of corn for fattening western lambs. Professor John F. Trost assembled the corn exhibit, which told the story of adapting varieties of corn to soil fertility and climatic conditions. Careful studies have made it possible for the experiment station to recommend definite varieties to meet the conditions to be found on any given farm in the state.

The South Dakota State College exhibit featured three important agricultural products of that state. Numerous samples of corn developed in South Dakota were on display together with a detailed map showing where certified early maturing seed corn was being produced for distribution.

Certified alfalfa seed was given similar prominence through the exhibit of different varieties and a map showing the states east of South Dakota which could profitably use seed grown in that state.

The third crop emphasized was certified seed potatoes. Samples were shown and a diagram indicated the fifteen states in the south and east which have successfully produced crops from South Dakota tubers.

Mr. A. L. Ford was again in charge of the display.

The University of Tennessee brought out an educational exhibit for the first time at the International which showed the wide range of crops produced in that state. Emphasis was placed on the possibility of having pasture for twelve months as a basis for economical live stock production. The place of honor was given to a legume crop, Lespedeza, which furnishes excellent summer and fall grazing as well as a hay crop. An automatic manikin invited visitors to stop and read the lessons on the turning pages of a book, while Mr. R. H. Milton in charge of the exhibit delighted the school children with samples of cotton bolls and other crops typical of his state.

The University of Wisconsin devoted its exhibit to the story of how barley is growing in popularity as a feed crop. The work of the plant breeders in developing smooth bearded varieties and of the agronomists in improving yield and quality through good cultural methods was vividly brought out. Of timely value to feeders was the information contained in this exhibit concerning the use of scabbed barley for feeding cattle, sheep, and poultry. Mr. E. D. Holden was in charge for the University and the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which co-operated.

The University of Wyoming staged a scenic exhibit on a balcony overlooking the downstairs Grain Show under the direction of Commissioner L. T. Oldroyd. Samples of the varied products of that state were displayed, and attention called to the recommendations of the University for the production of range live stock.

The Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, loaned exhibit cases illustrating some of the material of interest to farmers and stockmen contained in its permanent displays.

The Federal Grain Supervision office at Chicago of the United States Department of Agriculture contributed an educational exhibit dealing with its activities and containing interesting samples of grains from many countries, including mummified wheat kernels from an ancient Syrian tomb.

"Three Ages of Steers" Attract Many

So popular was the exhibit showing the development of the modern steer, introduced at last year's International, that it was decided to repeat the spectacle at the 1929 exposition. Even better subjects were secured this year to tell the story of what great changes fifty years have seen in market cattle styles.

A huge lumbering red ox, weighing about 2,800 pounds, typified the monster steers that were favorites at the fairs and stock shows a half century ago. To visualize the transition from the mammoth beeves of the last century to the trim young bullocks of present times, a Hereford weighing slightly under a ton was stabled in a stall between the old extreme and the new ideal. He was quite typical of the type of beef that predominated the show rings of the land about the time the International came into being in 1900.

Perfection in beef type, as it is recognized today, which comprises in the main early maturity, smooth fleshing, maximum quality, and minimum waste, was exemplified by three young prize winning beeves from this year's show—an Angus, a Hereford, and a Shorthorn. This trio stood in a third stall which completed the exhibit.

Ideal Market Hog Types Shown

A most practical exhibit was again on view in the swine barn. It consisted of a pen of ideal market hogs which was assembled by the combined efforts of the International Live Stock Exposition, the National Swine Growers' Association, and the Institute of American Meat Packers. All the common breeds of swine were represented, so that whatever the breed a farm visitor might be raising at home, he would have before him here a type that the packers now regard as most suited to their needs, and therefore most likely to command the top price of the market from their buyers. These hogs weighed between 190 and 240 pounds. They had a small proportion of shoulder and head, were characterized by smooth backs and bellies, and were all of firm flesh.

THE NEW AND THE OLD TYPE

GOVERNMENT EXHIBIT INSTRUCTIVE TO ALL

Though intended to be chiefly of value to corn belt stockmen, the United States Department of Agriculture exhibit was planned to interest the many types of people among the thousands who visit this show.

For example, a major section of this year's display was devoted to portraying the story of a steak or roast of beef "From Range to Table." It began with a breeding herd of range cattle and ended with a number of savory meat dishes which were planned to fit a variety of appetites as well as a wide range of family incomes, and included some recommended practices of range management, good husbandry, scientific feeding, intelligent marketing, and common-sense cookery.

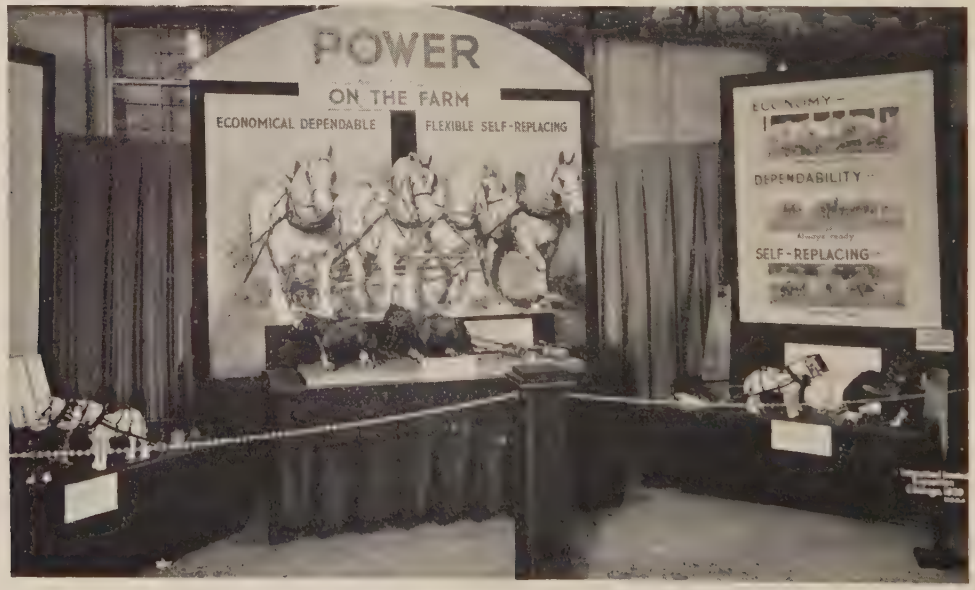
With a view to accommodating the great crowds that visit this exposition and wish to see the many attractions here, a number of ingenious devices were used in the Government exhibit to enable visitors to get each message with a minimum of effort. Ingenious mechanical devices, concealed sound-producing instruments, motion pictures, paintings, and a variety of lighting effects were resorted to for this purpose.

Of interest to cattle and sheep ranchers were two pictorial maps showing the right and the wrong way to salt live stock on the range, the object being to promote the best use of range forage. Destruction of valuable range grasses by prairie dogs, pocket gophers and other rodents was treated in another section.

There was a section devoted to the subject of soil erosion and how to prevent it, with consequent saving of fertility and forage and a lessening of flood hazard; another on pasture management outlined methods by which a stockman may get maximum benefits from this, his cheapest feed; and still another entitled "Power on the Farm," in which systems of eveners and hitches were employed in order to enable the farmer to use on a given piece of work the number of horses required to do the job without unnecessary strain, and without wasting horse or man power.

An exhibit that claimed the interest of many demonstrated the equipment used in fattening beef calves by self-feeder methods. Sni-A-Bar Farms, of Grain Valley, Missouri, furnished calves for the exhibit that were living examples of the process.



Practical advice to the corn belt farmer was carried in the alfalfa exhibit, wherein the mid-west farmer was urged to use only hardy strains of alfalfa seed. The foreign seed is unadaptable to corn belt climate and the vigor of the growth is thereby reduced. Another objection cited was that it is frequently found to contain a large percentage of weed seeds.

Interesting to all who market cattle, sheep, or hogs, was a number of features devoted to the changes which have taken place in market methods in recent times, including an explanation of the various services which the Government offers stockmen who wish to keep in touch with the market outlook and who wish to secure the benefits of orderly and intelligent buying and selling.

As in other years, a supply of the more popular farmers' bulletins were available for distribution, as well as the blue-print service containing plans and specifications for convenient labor-saving and practical farm equipment. Farmers from 33 states availed themselves of the opportunity to list their names for one or more of these blueprints during last year's show.
